MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA.

(i) SADĀŚIVAMŪRTI AND MAHĀSADĀŚIVAMŪRTI.

THE idea implied in the positing of the two gods, the Sadāśivamūrti and the Mahā-sadāśivamūrti contains within it the whole philosophy of the Śuddha-Śaiva school of Śaivism, without an adequate understanding of which it is not possible to appreciate why Sadāśiva is held in the highest estimation by the Śaivas. It is therefore unavoidable to give a very short summary of the philosophical aspect of these two deities as gathered from the Vātuḷaśuddhāgama. According to the Śaiva-siddhāntins there are three tatvas (realities) called Śiva, Sadāśiva and Mahēśa and these are said to be respectively the nishkalā, the sakalā-nishkalā and the sakalā<sup>(1)</sup> aspects of god: the word kalā is often used in philosophy to imply the idea of limbs, members or form; we have to understand, for instance, the term nishkalā to mean in the technology of the Śaiva philosophy. Because it produces the faculty in souls of the enjoyment of kaṃmas (good and bad actions) the Kṛiyāśakti is called nivṛtti, because it yokes to the puruṣa tatvas which are naturally inert and supremely subtle, the Jñānaśakti is called pratishṭha; because it understands māyā, the objects ushered into existence by the māyā and the distinction of the soul from the above two, the Ichchhāśakti is called vidyā, because it destroys mala, māyā and karma, the Ādiśakti is called śānti; and because it is the source through which souls attain the knowledge of the sat-chit-ānanda svarūpa of the Supreme Being, the Parāśakti is called śāntyātita <sup>(1)</sup>. From the five Śaktis mentioned just now appear the five different Sadāśiva-tatvas as follows :—

- 1 From a tenth of Parāśakti comes the first Sadāśiva-tatva, Śivasādākhya, known also by the name of Sadāśiva; because it is born of Parāśakti and is pure, it is called Śiva, and it exists everywhere as a subtle divine light, bright as the

that which has no form or limbs ; in other words, an undifferentiated formless entity. Now the Śiva-tatva mentioned above is identified with the nishkalā aspect of the Supreme god, because in this state all created beings merge their bodies, which they had obtained for the purpose of the enjoyment of actions of the pure and impure kinds, in the primeval cause, and therein suppress all activities. In the nishkalā state the Supreme Being has no beginning, no limit or boundary and is pervading everywhere, is indestructible, incomparable, extremely subtle and supreme, and is unknowable by any mode of proof. At the end of an aeonic destruction, (samhāra) for the purpose of creating the buddha-tatvas, the suddha-bhuvanas, and for the removal of dirt (mala) from Yōgis, five Saktis evolve as follows. when Śiva in his boundless mercy wills, a thousandth part of his self emerges out of him as Parāśakti, from a thousandth part of this Parāśakti comes out Ādiśakti, a thousandth part of Ādiśakti gives rise to Ichchhāśakti ; from this latter are produced in a similar manner Jñānaśakti and Kṛiyāśakti. These five Śaktis are also known as

Parāśakti=Śāntyātīśakti, Ādiśakti=Śāntiśakti,

lightning and pervading the space in the universe ;

2. from a tenth portion of Ādīśakti is evolved the second Sadāśiva-tatva, Amūrtta-sādākhya, known also as Īśāna. Because Ādīśakti, like Parāśakti, is also formless, this second tatva is called the amūrtta ; that is, this is also nishkalā. This sādākhya exists as a luminous pillar whose lustre is equal to that of a crore of suns put together. This pillar is called the Divya-līṅga or the Mūla-stambha. As everything takes its origin from the mūla-stambha and ends finally in it, it was called the līṅga ; <sup>(1)</sup>

3. from a tenth of Ichchhāśakti is produced the third Sadāśivatatva, Mūrttasādākhya, known also as Brahmā. Because this tatva has form it is called mūrtta , in other words it is sakalā. This tatva exists in the form of a Divyalīṅga with the brightness of fire and having flames of fire playing round it. On the top of this liṅga there is a figure with a beautiful face having three eyes, four arms and all other limbs. It carries in two out of its four hands the paraśu and the mṛiga and the remaining hands are held in the varada and the abhaya poses ;

4. from a tenth part of Jñānaśakti proceeded the fourth tatva, Kartṛisādākhya, otherwise Īśvara. Because Jñāna is the characteristic of the kartā (doer) this tatva received the name Kartṛisādākhyā. Usually it is believed to exist in the form of a Divyaliṅga of immeasurable length and girth : the characteristic quality of this liṅga is its crystal clearness. On this liṅga resides Śiva, the origin of all existence, in the form of a figure having four faces, twelve eyes, eight ears and arms, and two legs. In the right hands of this figure are śūla, paraśu, khaḍga and abhaya, whereas in the left ones are pāśa, sarpa, ghaṇṭā and varada and is adorned with all ornaments ; and similarly also as Īśāna. <sup>(1)</sup> It is called karma because it is of the nature of kṛiyā. This tatva exists as the līṅga set upon the pīṭha. As the act (karma) of the conjunction of these two objects is the condition precedent to creation, the tatva received the name of Karma-sādākhya.
5. from a tenth part of Kṛiyāśakti emerged the fifth tatva, Karmasādākhya, known

Each one of these tatvas is dependant upon its immediate predecessor, for example, the amūrt-tasāda depends upon the śivasāda, the mūrtta on the amūrtta and so on. Therefore, the Karmasāda-tatva is to be taken as containing in it all the five *sādākhya*s. The deity Īśāna representing the Karmasāda has a perfectly white body resembling the flower of the kunda (a kind of jasmine) or the full moon; having five heads adorned with *jaṭā-makuta*s; bearing on each face three eyes, ten arms and two legs. He is standing on a padmāsana and keeps in his right hands the śūla, paraśu, khaḍga, vajra and abhaya and in the left ones the nāga, pāśa, aṅkuśa, ghaṇṭa, and agni. He is beautiful adorned with all ornaments, draped in fine clothes and is with a smiling countenance full of peacefulness. The significance of the articles in the hands of all these deities have already been explained in the Chapter on "Āyudhapurushas" in Vol. I of this work. Of the five faces of this deity, the one facing the east is that of Īśāna; that facing the south, of Īśvara; the west, of Brahmā; the north, of Īśa and the top of Sadāśiva. All ceremonials, such as installation (sthāpana), should be done only for the Īśāna face and not for the other faces. The other faces are meant for the meditation of those who have attained perfection in yōga, mantra-siddhi, etc. It is from these five faces the Śaivāgamas were given out to the world<sup>(1)</sup>. Again, from Mahēśvara were produced the following . Rudradēva who is a thousandth portion of Mahēśa ; Viśhṇu who is one part out of a crore of Rudra ; Brahmā who is one part out of a crore of Viśhṇu and the three luminaries the sun, the moon and the fire, from the three eyes of Mahēśa , the wind from his nose ; jñāna from his mouth ; Gaṇēśa from his neck ; Shaṇmukha from his chest ; fifty crores (!) of divine beings from his navel ; and several crores (!) of ṛishis from his hair. Such in short is the philosophy of the five sādhakhyas, the five mūrtis and the tatvas of the Śaiva-siddhānta.

(1) The names of these five aspects corresponding to the five *sādākhya*s are usually known as Vāmadōva (=Īśa), Tatpuruṣa (=Īśāna), Aghōra (=Īśvara), Saḍyōjāta (=Brahmā) and Īśāna (=Sadāśiva) and they face the north, east, south, west and the top respectively.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚĪVA.

From the above we can very well understand that Sadāśīva is the highest and the Supreme Being, formless, beyond the comprehension of any one, subtle, luminous and all pervading ; not contaminated by any qualities (guṇas) and above all actions (karmas). It is from this Supreme Being all else have their origin, being and end at his will. This Sadāśīva-tatva is said to be sakala-nishakala, for this reason, namely:—after a cosmic destruction, a cosmic evolution has to follow ; for, those souls that have not been cleansed of their dirt of actions (karma-mala) should be made to undergo once again worldly bondage (saṁsāra) thereby enabling them to rub down the effects of their bad karmas done in past births and accumulate in the present existence those of good karmas and finally be relieved of mundane existence. For the purpose of creation, the Supreme Being attempts to cause the movement of the bindu (sperm) and it is in this state that he is considered as sakala-nishkala. This abstruse conception of the Sadāśīvamūrti, which the Āgamas themselves declare cannot be comprehended by ordinary mortals has fortunately been idolised in a material form for the benefit of men and the description of this image is found in all Śaivagamas.

The Uttara-kāmikāgama states that the colour of Sadāśīvamūrti should be of white colour and be standing upon a padmāsana. There should be five faces and the heads be adorned with jaṭāmakuṭas, whose jaṭās are required to be of brown colour. Sadāśiva should have ten arms; in the five right hands there should be the śakti, śūla, khaṭvāṅga, abhaya and prasāda (?) and in the five left ones, the bhujāṅga (a snake), akṣhamālā, ḍamaru, nīlōt-pala and a fruit of the mātulaṅga. Or, Sadāśiva may be conceived as having only one face set with three eyes which represent the Ichchhāśakti, the Jñānaśakti and the Kriyāśakti; with the Chandra-kalā (the crescent moon), which stands as a symbol of jñāna (wisdom), tucked up in the jaṭāmakuṭa and adorned with all ornaments such as the yajñōpavīta. Manōnmani, the Supreme goddess, should be standing by his side.

Figs. 1 and 2, Pl. CXII and Pl. CXV illustrate the description of Sadāśivamūrti. The seated figure has five heads each of which is adorned with a jaṭā-makuṭa; it has ten arms; one of the right hands is held in the abhaya pose and a corresponding left one in the varada pose. The other hands carry the akṣhamālā, pāśa, khaḍga, ṭaṅka (or paraśu), kamaṇḍalu and other objects not quite clear in the photograph. The standing figure (fig. 2, Pl. CXII), also possesses five heads of which the topmost has tongues of flames playing round it; some of the faces have side-tusks and the figure is nude; all these are characteristic features of a terrific (or ugra) aspect of the deity. There are eighteen arms, the hands of which are seen to carry such objects as the śūla, pāśa, khaḍga, khētaka, musala, paraśu, ghanta, kapāla and others. The figure is adorned with various necklaces of which one is long enough to descend as far as the ankle and is composed of tiny bells. Both these images appear to be modern.

The beautiful figure of Sadāśivamūrti reproduced on Pl. CXV is said to have been discovered in Elephanta and is badly damaged. Like all other pieces in the caves at Elephanta this one also is carved splendidly. The very well executed jaṭā-makuṭas adorned with finely wrought discs, the row of small curls of hair fringing the forehead (uśhṇīsha), the necklaces, the yaññōpavīta, the girdle round the loins are all very nicely worked out. The figure has four faces and since all its arms are broken, it is not possible to say how many it originally possessed.

Mahāsadāśivamūrti is conceived as having Mahasadasiva- twenty-five heads and fifty arms murti. bearing as many objects in their hands. The five heads of Sadāśivamūrti which represent the five aspects of Śiva (the Pañchabrahmās), who are the lords of creation, protection, etc., are each substituted by five heads, making on the whole twenty-five; which stand for twenty-five tatvas of philosophy. The Mānasāra states that Mahāsadāśiva should be represented with twenty-five faces, having on the whole seventy-five eyes and fifty arms. The heads should be adorned with jaṭā-makutas and the ears with kuṇḍalas, and there should be a number of snake ornaments (sarpālaṅkāra). One of the hands should be held in the abhaya and another in the varada pose respectively. A representation such as this is rarely found portrayed in sculpture; one instance is found in Vaiṭṭīśvarankōyil (Tanjore District) made of brick in mortar. In this, one other peculiarity is also observable, namely the heads are arranged in tiers in arithmetical progression. The topmost tier has only one head, the next one below has three, the next five and so on till the last tier has nine heads. Only those heads which are on the borders of this triangle of heads could be adorned with jaṭāmakutas and they alone are actually ornamented with these in the sculpture. Surrounding the image are two flower garlands so put on as to represent a sort of prabhāvali. Out of the large number of hands, one is held in the abhaya and another in the varada poses.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA.

(ii) PAÑCHABRAHMĀS OR ĪŚĀNĀDAYAH.

The five aspects of Śiva known collectively as the Pañchabrahmās and whose individual names are Īśāna, Tatpurusha, Aghōra, Vāma-dēva and Sadyōjāta are, as we have already said, emanations from the nishkala-Śiva (the formless, unmanifested Parabrahma of the Vēdāntins and Vāsudeva of the same state of existence according to the Vaishṇavāgamas).

The Pādmapurāṇa also states that Rudra when he cried to Brahmā to give him (Rudra) names, the latter conferred upon him the eight names Bhava, Śarva, Īśāna, Śiva, Paśupati, Bhīma, Ugra and Mahādēva. These eight aspects of Rudra became the presiding deities over the sun, the water, the fire, the earth, the air, the ether (ākāśa), the brāhmaṇas who had performed sacrifices and the moon respectively. The names of the consorts corresponding to these eight aspects of Śiva are Suvarchalā, Ushā, Vikēśi, Śivā, Svāhā, Diśā, Dikshā and Rōhiṇi and those of their sons, Sanaiśchara, Śukra, Lōhitāṅga (Mars), Manōjava, Sarga, Śunda, Santāna and Budha.

The figures representing these five aspects are described in the Āgamas, the Vishṇudharmōttara and the Rūpamaṇḍana. The descriptions of these according to the Āgamas have already been given in the summary of the Śaiva philosophy added at the beginning of this chapter.

The Vishṇudharmōttara states that these aspects should have each five faces and ten arms : it omits describing one aspect, which is perhaps the Īśāna considered to be above all the other four. The colours of Tatpurusha, Aghōra, Vāmadēva and Sadyōjāta, according to this authority should be white, yellow, black and red respectively and they may also be considered to belong to the four varṇas (castes) namely, the Brāhmaṇa, the Kshatriya, the Vaiśya and the Sūdra. They should keep in their hands the khaḍga, khēṭaka, dhanus, bāṇa, kamaṇḍalu, akshamālā, varada, abhaya, śūla and padma

Īśāna, according to the Rūpamaṇḍana, should have the colour as pure as that of the crystal ; his head should be adorned with a jaṭāmakuṭa ornamented with the crescent moon and his hands should have the akshamālā, triśūla, kapāla and abhaya. The colour of the garment and the yajñōpavīta of Tatpurusha is to be yellow and in his left hand there is to be a mātulaṅga fruit and in the right one an akshamālā. The face of Aghōra should be of terrific look, set with three yellow coloured eyes and the mouth having side tusks ; on the head there should be a garland of human skulls and a snake, and snake ornaments everywhere; two snakes serving as the ear-rings, two others as kēyūras, one as hāra, one as yajñōpavīta, one as kaṭisūtra (the waist-zone), the snakes Taksha and Puṣṭika as anklets, and so on; there should also be a garland composed of scorpions (vṛiśchika). The colour of the body of Aghōra should be blue like the nīlōtpala, and that of the jaṭās, yellow, and these should be adorned with the crescent moon. The general look of this aspect of Śiva should resemble that of Kāla (the god of death) and appear as though terrifying a host of enemies. The left hands should bear in them the khaṭvāṅga the kapāla, the khēṭaka and the pāśa while the right ones, the triśūla, the paraśu, the khaḍga and the daṇḍa. The colour of the body, the eyes, garments, the head-gear, the yajñōpavīta, the garland, the sandal-paste and ear-ornament of Vāmadēva should be red. As usual, the crescent moon should be adorning the jaṭāmakuṭa of this deity also. He should have three eyes and a prominent nose, be decorated with all ornaments and carry in his hands the khaḍga and the khēṭaka. The colour of the body, garland, sandal-paste and the garments of Sadyōjāta should be white. His head should be adorned with a jaṭāmakuṭa, ornamented with the crescent moon. He should have a good-looking face expressive of joy, three eyes and two arms : the two hands should be held in the varada and the abhaya poses.

The Śrītatvanidhi gives somewhat different descriptions of the Pañchabrahmās. For Īśāna there should be, according to this work, five faces, and four for each of the rest ; each of these faces should have three eyes ; the colour of Īśāna, Tatpurusha, Aghōra, Vāmadēva and Sadyōjāta, are respectively white, golden-yellow, blue, red and white. They ought to face the top, east, south, north and west respectively. Īśāna should have in his hands abhaya, varada (?) (ishṭa in the original), aṅkuśa, pāśa, ṭaṅkā, kapāla, ḍhakka (a musical instrument), akṣhamālā and śūla. In two out of the four hands of Tatpurusha there should be kūṭhāra (a sort of axe) and vidyā (gñāna-mudrā or a book) and the remaining two should be held in the abhaya and the varada poses ; whereas there should be the paraśu, vēda (a book ?), aṅkuśa, pāśa śūla, kapāla, ḍhakka and akṣhamālā in the hands of Aghōra. Two of Vāmadēva's hands should be held in the varada and the abhaya poses and the two remaining ones should hold in them the akṣhamālā and the ṭaṅka ; while similarly two of those of Sadyōjāta are to be held in the varada and abhaya poses and the two remaining ones keep the vēdas and the akṣhamālā. But Sadyōjāta is distinctly required to be sculptured so as to appear of greater importance than the rest.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA.

(iii) MAHĒŚAMŪRTI.

Mahēśamūrti, we have been told by the Śaivāgamas, is the fully manifested Supreme Śiva and is the cause of creation, protection and destruction. The figure of this deity is described at some length in the Suprabhēdāgama. It is stated therein that Mahēśa should have five heads, the faces of four of which alone should be visible, each of these faces should possess three eyes besides a mouth, a nose and a pair of ears and should be placed above a neck each. Mahēśa should have two legs and ten arms; two of his hands are to be held in the varada and the abhaya poses, while the remaining four right ones should keep the śūla, paraśu, vajra and khaḍga, and the remaining left ones the khēṭaka, aṅkuśa, pāśa and ghaṇṭa. The complexion of this aspect of Śiva should be crystal clear, having the lustre of the sun, but cool as the dew or the moon, Mahēśa must be clothed in white garments and should wear a white yajñōpavīta and should be adorned with all ornaments.

By his side should be the figure of Śakti also. It should have three eyes, and four arms. On the head there should be a karāṇḍa-makuta and on the person all ornaments appropriate to women. The waist of the figure should be slender, and the pelvis broad; similarly there should be two well-developed high breasts on the chest. Two of the hands should each hold a nīlōtpala and an akṣhamālā, while the other two should be kept in the varada and abhaya poses. The figure must be clothed in silk garments and must be standing on the same seat and under the same prabhāvali as Mahēśa on his left side.

Four photographs are reproduced in illustration of the Mahēśa aspect of Śiva: the first, Pl. CXVI, is a beautiful figure of stone lying in a field opposite a ruined Śiva temple at Mēlehēri near Kāvēripākkam in the N. Arcot District. It has suffered damage at the hands of the Mussalmans during the troublous days of the contest for the succession to the Nabobship of the Karnatic. It has, as required, four faces, three of which are visible in the photograph. On the crown of the left face could be distinctly seen a big human skull and just below it is the hood of a cobra, whereas the middle head has a beautifully tied up jāṭāmakuṭa ornamented with jewelled discs, flower garlands and the inevitable crescent moon; at the base of this makuta may be noticed a row of five or six spherical objects which appear to be the skulls composing a garland. The third eye is very clearly marked on the forehead of the central face. There are as usual hāras, udarabandha and yajñōpavīta. Close to the neck is also a hāra composed of a snake. In the unbroken right hand is visible the ḍamaru; one other hand seems to have held a long sword whose upper part is visible on the crown, near the human skull; this latter itself appears to be the head of the khaṭvāṅga held by the image in one of its right hands, for, it might be noticed that there is a base attached to the skull; and this base is the capital of the handle of the khaṭvāṅga. (See fig. 10, Pl. II, Vol. I.) Perhaps one hand was held in the abhaya pose, it is impossible to say what the remaining two other hands might have held: in the unbroken left hands are to be seen the pāśa, the khēṭaka, a kapāla and something which resembles a fruit. One of the left hands should also have carried a long handled object—perhaps a triśūla or paraśu (?). There are also two legs as described in our authority. The image is seated in a comparatively rare posture. The right and the left faces are pacific, while the middle face is terrific. Its circular eyes, surmounted with a pair of knitted eye-brows, its wide mouth having side tusks—all these indicate, according to the rules of the āgamas, the terrific (ugra) aspect, which, in this instance, is that of the Aghōra face of the Mahēśa. This fine piece of sculpture belongs to the later Pallava period, perhaps to the reign of Nandivarman, son of Dantivarman (about A. D. eighth century).

The figure of Mahēśamūrti whose photograph is shown on Pl. CXIV as fig. 1 is found near the Gokak Falls in the Belgaum district. It is seated in the yōgūsana posture and has four faces (of which three are visible) and six arms. The front face is of the terrific aspect and the two side ones are pacific. The hands carry the śūla, akṣamālā, ḍamaru, a fruit and some other objects not clear from the photograph.

The next illustration is the celebrated "Trimūrti" of the famous Elephanta Cave. (See Pl. CXVII) I am of opinion that it is unmistakably the representation of Mahēśamūrti and not of Trimūrti. My reasons therefor are:—

(1) There are no texts to be found in the whole of the Āgamic or the Paurāṇic literature which agree with this piece of sculpture.

(2) The three heads bear only jaṭāmakuṭas which are the characteristic head-gears of Śiva and Brahmā only. Viṣṇu should, under no circumstances, wear a jaṭāmakuṭa, his appropriate head dress being a kirīṭa-makūṭa. Hence, even if it is supposed that two out of the three faces are those of Brahmā and Śiva, because they wear the jaṭāmakūṭas, the third cannot be identified with that of Viṣṇu for the very reason that its head bears a jaṭāmakūṭa.

(3) Brahmā is nowhere as he is under no circumstances represented in sculpture or even in literature as possessing only one head. His figure should always be sculptured with four heads. So, the supposition that one of the heads is that of Brahmā is also clearly untenable.

(4) The descriptions of Trimūrti as found are very clearly different from these sculptured representations and have a number of material illustrations in corroboration of the description given of them in the āgamas. (See under Trimūrti or Ēkapādamurti below.)

(5) The central position occupied by this sculpture in the cave-temple with reference to the other manifestations of Śiva (the līlāmūrtis), such as those of Arddhanārīśvara, Kalyāṇasundara, Rāvaṇānugraha, Gaṅgādhara and other mūrtis, found surrounding him, bear incontrovertible evidence to the conclusion that the sculpture represents only the Mahēśa or the most important aspect of Śiva.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Now, the face on the left side has a severe look on its countenance, with cruel eyes, curling moustaches and a beard and a jaṭāmakuṭa serving as an abode for several snakes, which are seen wriggling through the jaṭās. The human skull ornament is also seen on the jaṭāmakuṭa; the ear belonging to this face has a sarpa-kunḍala, the hood of a cobra constituting it being visible. This is certainly the face that represents Aghōra-mūrti. The central face is calm and dignified. In the ears belonging to this face are to be seen makara-kunḍalas. This is perhaps the face representing Sadyōjāta. The face on the right side is also a calm and pacific one. In its ear there appears to have been a śaṅkha-patra which is broken, but a sufficient portion of it still remains for it to be recognized. The three different kinds of ear-ornaments are sufficient proof against the sculpture being that of Trimūrti. There are only six arms represented in the sculpture, that is, as many pairs as there are faces visible. One of the right hands carries a cobra which has its hood widened out, the hand holding it being also kept in the sarpa-mudrā pose; another hand appears to have been held in the abhaya pose or to have kept an akṣhamālā, but it is badly broken, the front left hand is seen keeping a mātulaṅga. It is not possible to say what other objects are held in the other hands. Copies of this piece of sculpture are to be seen in one or two other caves at Ellora and other places. A personal study of more than one such sculpture will settle once for all the question of the identity of this image.

The next illustration comes from Chitorgarh, in the Udaipur State, Marwar (Pl. CXVIII). Though it is not a good specimen of art, it is very valuable in settling definitely the question of the nature of the image in favour of my hypothesis. In this also there are three faces, the one on the left and the central one being of a pacific and that on the right of a terrific type. The third eye is clearly visible in the centre of the forehead of all the three faces, a fact that gives the direct contradiction to the hypothesis that such figures are representations of the Trimūrtis, Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva. All three heads bear on them jaṭāmakuṭas, but that of the right head is composed of a large number of ringlets in which are seen snakes and a skull. The eyes of this face are oblique and staring and its mouth is gaping. This is surely the face of Aghōra. In this sculpture, one of the right hands is held in the sarpa-mudrā pose, another keeps something resembling a book (?) and the third an akṣhamālā; whereas the left hands carry a mātulaṅga, a kapāla and a sarpa.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY

A comparison of this piece of sculpture with the magnificent carving at Elephanta gives the clue to the objects that should have been held by the now broken hands of the latter sculpture.

(iv) EKĀDAŚĀ RUDRAS.

We have already seen how Rudra was produced from the frown of Brahmā (or Viṣṇu), and how he divided into eleven minor Rudras, who went by the collective name of the Ekādaśa-Rudras. The names of these eleven emanations of Rudra, according to the Aṁṣumadbhēdāgama, are

1. Mahādēva,
2. Śiva,
3. Śaṅkara,
4. Nīlalōhita,
5. Īśāna,
6. Vijaya,
7. Bhīma,
8. Dēvadēva,
9. Bhavōdbhava,
10. Rudra, and
11. Kapālīśa.

The general characteristics of the images of these deities are first given in the authority quoted above and in the Śilparatna. It is stated in these works that the images of all these aspects of Śiva should have three eyes, four arms, jaṭāmaṭṭas and be of white colour, they should be draped also in white clothes and be standing erect (samabhaṅga) on a padmapīṭha. They should be adorned with all ornaments and with garlands composed of all flowers and they should keep their front right hand in the abhaya and the front left hand in the varada poses, while they should carry in the back right hand the paraśu and in the back left hand the mṛiga.

The enumeration of the names of the Rudras are quite different in the Viśvakarma-sūtra and the Rūpamaṇḍana. In the former the names are given as

1. Aja,
2. Ēkapāda,
3. Abirbudhnya,
1. Virūpāksha,
5. Rēvata,
6. Hara,
7. Bahurūpa,
8. Tryambaka,
9. Surōśvara,
10. Jayanta, and
11. Aparājita.

Whereas, the latter gives the following as the list of the names of these deities :—

1. Tatpuruṣa,
2. Aghōra,

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

3. Īśāna,
4. Vāmadēva,
5. Sadyōjāta,
6. Mrityunjaya
7. Kiraṇāksha,
8. Śrikaṇṭha,
9. Ahirbudhnya,
10. Virūpāksha,
11. Bahurūpa, and
12. Tryambaka.

The two works give the descriptions of the images of each of these eleven deities. According to the Viśvakarma-śilpa, Aja has sixteen arms. In the right hands he keeps the śūla, ankuśa, kapāla, ḍamaru, sarpa, mudgara, akṣhamālā and sudarśana (chakra); of the left hands, one is held in the tarjanī pose, while the others carry the gadā, khaṭvāṅga, paṭṭiśa (a sharp edged iron rod), ghaṇṭa, śakti, paraśu and kamaṇḍalu.

Ēkapāda keeps in his left hand the khaṭvāṅga, bāṇa, chakra, ḍamaru, mudgara, varada, akṣhamālā, and śūla; while the right hands keep the dhanus, ghaṇṭa, kapāla, kaumudī (ardha-chandra?), tarjanī, ghaṭa, paraśu and chakra (śakti?). It is stated that the worship of this deity secures to the votary all material enjoyments.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA

Ahīrbudhnya keeps in his right hands the gadā, chakra, khaḍga, ḍamaru, mudgara, śūla, aṅkuśa and akṣhamālā ; and in the left hands the tōmara (an iron club), paṭṭiśa, kavacha (shield), kapāla, tarjanī, ghaṭa, śakti and paraśu ; or, there may be in one of the left hands a sword as in the right hand.

Virūpākṣa holds in his right hands the khaḍga, śūla, ḍamaru, aṅkuśa, sarpa, chakra, gadā and akṣhamālā ; and in the left hands, the khēṭaka, khaṭvāṅga, śakti, paraśu, tarjanī, ghaṭa, ghaṇṭa, and kapāla.

Rēvata carries in the right hands the dhanus, khaḍga, śūla, gadā, sarpa, chakra, aṅkuśa and akṣhamālā ; and in the left hands the dhanus (?), khēṭaka, khaṭvāṅga, ghaṇṭa, tarjanī, paraśu, paṭṭiśa and pātra. This aspect of Rudra grants, like Sūrya, all the goods of the world to his worshippers.

Hara bears in his right hands the mudgara, ḍamaru, śūla, aṅkuśa, gadā, sarpa and akṣhamālā, (the object in the remaining hand is not mentioned); and in the left hands, paṭṭiśa, tōmara, śakti, paraśu, tarjanī, ghaṭa, khaṭvāṅga and paṭṭikā (?).

Bahurūpa keeps in the right hands the ḍamaru, chakra, sarpa, śūla, aṅkuśa, kaumudī and akṣhamālā (the eighth object is not mentioned) ; and in the left hands the ghaṇṭa, kapāla, khaṭvāṅga, tarjanī, kamaṇḍalu, dhanus, paraśu and paṭṭiśa.

Tryambaka carries in his right hands the chakra, ḍamaru, mudgara, bāṇa, śūla, aṅkuśa, sarpa and akṣhamālā; and in the left ones, the gadā, khaṭvāṅga, pātra, dhanus, tarjanī, ghaṭa, paraśu and paṭṭiśa.

Surēśvara holds in his right hands the ḍamaru, chakra, śūla, aṅkuśa, bāṇa, mudgara and dhanus (the object in the eighth hand is not mentioned) and in the left hands the padma, paraśu, ghaṇṭa, paṭṭiśa, tarjanī, dhanus, khaṭvāṅga and pātra.

Jayanta keeps in his right hands the aṅkuśa, chakra, mudgara, śūla, sarpa, ḍamaru, bāṇa and akṣhamālā; and in the left ones the gadā, khaṭvāṅga, paraśu, kapāla, śakti, tarjanī, dhanus and kamaṇḍalu.

And Aparājita carries in his right hands the tōmara, khaḍga, aṅkuśa, śūla, sarpa, chakra, ḍamaru and akṣhamālā; and in the left hands the śakti, khēṭaka, gadā, pātra, tarjanī, paṭṭiśa, padma and ghaṇṭa.

The objects mentioned as being held in the hands of the various deities are required to be held in the order in which they are mentioned, beginning from the topmost hand to the lowest.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA

Five of the eleven Rudras enumerated in the Rūpamaṇḍana have already been described under the head Pañchabrahmās. Descriptions of the sixth, seventh and the eighth are also given in this work, but not of the remaining three others.

Mṛityuñjaya, the sixth Rudra, should wear a garland of skulls on his head, be of white complexion, clad in garments made of tiger's skin, and carrying in two out of three of his right hands the triśūla and the akṣhamālā, and of the left hands two should hold the kapāla and the kamaṇḍalu while the remaining right hand and the left hand should be kept in the yōga-mudrā pose.

Kiraṇāksha, the seventh Rudra, has four arms and three eyes. One of his hands is held in the abhaya pose, and the others carry the śukla-pāda (white light-rays?), an akṣhamālā and a book.

Śrīkaṇṭha should be clad in embroidered clothes (chitravastra), and ornamented with all ornaments including an yajñōpavīta of superior workmanship (chitra-yajñōpavīta) and must be very good looking. He has four arms and only one face. In his hands he should be carrying the khaḍga, the dhanus, the bāṇa and the khetaka.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

As has already been stated above, the three remaining Rudras are not described.

(v) VIDYĒSVARAS.

Just as the weaver is the efficient cause (nimit-takāraṇa), the Nishkalā-Śiva is the efficient cause of the universe composed of the moveable and immoveable objects. The immoveable objects consist of such things as the mountains, and the moveable, of things like paśu (here used in the technical sense of animals endowed with souls, man covered with ignorance). Souls have sūkshma-śarīras (subtle bodies) and bhuvana śarīras (material regional bodies). The bhuvanas or regions are of two kinds, namely, the suddha (pure) and the asuddha (impure) bhuvanas. These bhuvanas and kalās and their residents are appended below in the foot note (1). The bhuvanas or the regions have been created by Paramaśiva for the enjoyment of the paśus or embodied souls. The souls that live in the pure regions are pure in their nature and those that live in the impure regions are impure. The paśus are

The vijñānakala souls that have their mala in a high state of paripakva are those of the eight Vidyēśvaras and next to them come the Mantrēśvaras. Having been given pure body, deeds, bhuvanas and enjoyments (buddha tanu, karaṇa, bhuvana, bhōga), these slowly get rid of their mala, by the destructive action of Śiva. These Vidyēśvaras are the beings through whom the lower order of beings should attain higher evolutionary stages. They are eight in number and

Besides Kalā, Tatva and Bhuvana, there are three more entities, namely, Varna, Pada and Mantra. All these six are dependent on one another, thus, tatva depends upon kalā, bhuvana on tatva and so on. It is said in the Siddhānta-sārāph that the tatvas from Prithivī (No. 36) to Māyā (No. 6) are called Ātma tatvas, those from Śuddhavidyā (No. 5) to Sadāśivatatva (No. 3) are Vidyātatvas and the remaining, Śakti and Śiva tatvas are Śiva-tatvas. have different colours. Their names and colours are given below in a tabular form.

No.	Name.	Colour.

4	Ēkanōtra	Yellow.
5	Ēkarudra	Black.

Their figures should have each one face set with three eyes, adorned with a jatāmakuta, gajñōpavīta and all other ornaments. According to the Pūrva-Kāraṇāgama they should carry in their back hands the śūla and the ṭaṅka and keep their front ones in the varada and abhaya poses. But the Vishṇudharmōtara states that their front hands should be kept in the anjali pose, and the back ones should carry the bāṇa and the triśūla. Detailed descriptions of each of these Vidyēśvaras are found in the Aṁśumadbhēdāgama.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

According to this authority, Ananta has a handsome, pacific appearance; a single face with three eyes in it; four arms; has the red colour of the shoe-flower; is adorned with a karaṇḍa-makuṭa and all other ornaments; he is to be standing upon a padmapīṭha and clothed in white garments. Two of his hands are held in the varada and abhaya poses and the other two keep in them the śūla and ṭaṅka.

Trimūrti (Ēkapāda), Ēkanētra and Ēkarudra are, (according to the Aṃśumadbhēdāgama), alike and their description is given under Ēkanētra below. A more elaborate description of Ēkapāda-Trimūrti and other forms of Trimūrtis is found in the Uttara-Kāraṇāgama. According to this Ēkapāda-Trimūrti should be standing erect (samabhaṅga) with only one leg upon a padmapīṭha. This member of the class of Vidyēśvaras is also pacific. The colour of the deity is clear as the crystal and he has three eyes and four arms; the two front hands are held in the varada and the abhaya poses, while the two back hands keep the tanka and śūla or mṛiga. His ears may be adorned with either ordinary kuṇḍalas or those set with pearls and his head with a jaṭā-makuṭa and there should be all other ornaments in their appropriate places on the person of this deity.

MISCELLANEOUS ASPECTS OF ŚIVA.

From the right and left of this erect figure of Śiva should be seen emerging those of Brahmā and Viṣṇu respectively. In sculpture they ought to be shown above the waist and must have each a leg kept bent and held up above the ground level. Brahmā, as usual, should have four faces and four arms. The two front hands should be shown as held in the añjali pose and the other two as carrying the sruk and the kamaṇḍalu. Similarly, Viṣṇu should have four arms of which the front two are folded and held in the añjali pose and the back hands should hold the śaṅkha and the chakra. The head of Viṣṇu should be adorned with the kṛitamakūṭa. The whole of this composite piece of sculpture should be surrounded by a single prabhāmaṇḍala. It is stated in another Āgama (Uttara-Kāmikāgama) that the figures of Brahmā and Viṣṇu should be sculptured according to the tālamāna (proportions) prescribed for female deities.

Another way in which Trimūrti may be represented is this: Brahmā and Viṣṇu may be sculptured as issuing from either side of a large liṅga. Thirdly, they may be represented each one separately with all their characteristics and as standing side by side on three separate padma-piṭhas.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Fourthly, there may be three shrines in a temple each separated from the other and in these there may be set up in the middle shrine a liṅga and in the right and left the shrines for Brahmā and Viṣṇu respectively. Fifthly, in a temple consisting of three contiguous shrines (triforium) they may be set up as in the previous case. The central figure may be also Nṛtta or other forms of Śiva.

Illustrations are not wanting of the Ēkapāda-Trimūrti. In all important Śiva temples of S. India, we meet with this image in some place or other, at least carved upon pillars. An excellent specimen of it is found in the temple at Tiruvorriyūr, whose photograph has been reproduced in the Introduction to Vol. I of this work. (See Pl. F, fig. 1.) Fig. 1, Pl. XCIX, is another piece of sculpture which is found in the Śiva temple at Jambukēśvaran; this is almost identical with that of Tiruvorriyūr. In addition to the three mūrtis, Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva, we have in this instance the figures of a haṁsa, a bull and a Garuḍa, the vehicles respectively of Brahmā, Śiva and Viṣṇu. There is also the figure of a yōgi standing on the right with a jaṭābandha on his head carrying in his left hand a danḍa and keeping his right hand in the attitude of praising the Trimūrti. For the third mode of representation of the Trimūrtis see Pls. LXII, fig. 1 and LXXIV of Vol. I. Temples containing separate shrines for Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva are found in many parts of the Travancore State ; for example there is the Valiya-chālai temple at Trivandram and the temple at Tīruvallam. The triforium temples are common features of the Chālukya-Hoysala style of architecture. As examples of this I may quote the splendid temple of Dakṣiṇakēdārēśvara at Bahgāmi, the temple at Sōmanāthapura and the Kēdārēśvara temple at Halebidu. All these temples have their ground plan resembling roughly the ace of the "clubs" of the playing cards, the three circular portions representing the three shrines and the tail the front maṇḍapa, which is common to all the three shrines. In these temples we generally see two līngas in two shrines and a figure of Viṣṇu in the remaining third shrine. One of the līngas represents Brahmā and the other Śiva. (See Epigraphia Carnatika, Vol. V, of Hassan District, for the photograph of the Kēdārēśvara temple):

Sūkshma has a pacific appearance, is of blue complexion and has three eyes and four arms. He is clothed in garments embroidered with gold lace and adorned with all ornaments. The front hands of Sūkshma are held in the varada and abhaya poses, while the back hands carry the ṭaṅka and the śūla.

Śrīkaṇṭha has also four arms in two of which he carries the śūla and the ṭaṅka and holds the others in the varada and abhaya poses. he is standing upon a padmapīṭha and is draped in red garments.

Śivōttama is of white complexion, has four arms and two eyes, is adorned with a karandā-makuṭa and with other appropriate ornaments and is clothed in white garments. He bears on his chest a white yajñōpavīta. Keeping his front hands in the varada and abhaya poses, and carrying in his back hands the śūla and the pāśa, he stands erect (samabhaṅga) on a padma-pīṭha.

Śikhāṇḍī of dark complexion is a pacific deity having four arms; he is adorned with a karandā-makuṭa and all other ornaments and is draped in red clothes. His front hands are held in the varada and the abhaya poses, while the back ones keep in them the khadga and the khēṭaka.

Ēkanētra has three eyes and a pacific look and bears on his head a jaṭāmakuṭa. He is clothed in white silk garments and is adorned with all ornaments. Two of his hands are in the varaḍa and the abhaya poses, while the two remaining ones are carrying the śula and the ṭaṅka.

Ēkarudra resembles in all respects Ēkanētra described above.

In conjunction with the Śaktis, Vāmā, Jyēshṭhā Raudrī, Kālī, Kalavikaraṇī, Balavikaraṇī, Bala-praṇaṭhaṇī and Sarvabhūtaḍaṇaṇī, the Vidyēśvaraṣ are maḍe by Paramaśiva to create the universe. It may be noted that all these eight aspects of Śiva paṇific in their nature and are residents of the pure regions (Śuddhabhuvanaṣ).

(vi) MŪRTYASHṬAKA.

The eight forms of Śiva which go by the names of Bhava, Śarva, Īśāna, Paśupati, Ugra, Rudra, Bhīma and Mahāḍēva are grouped under the collective name of the Murtyasṭaka. We have already seen how these names were received in succession by Śiva when he was first produced by Prajāpati and how the eight aspects represented by the names given above became the lords of the various talvas such as fire, air, earth, etc. (See also Vol I, pp 398-400 )

We learn from the Liṅga-purāṇa that Śiva is to the universe what clay and the potter are to the pot, namely the upādāna kārāṇa (material cause) and the nimitta kārāṇa (instrumental or generative cause). Such a Being manifests himself in five different forms.

He who is the soul of the universe is called Īśāna. The illusory (māyā) material world is Tatpurusha; Buddhi with its eight components beginning from dharma is Aghōra; Vāmadēva pervades the whole of the universe in the form of ākāṅkara and the manas-tatva (mind) is Sadyōjāta.

The Sūta-saṁhitā also conveys the same notion about the nature of the five aspects of Śiva known as the Pañcha-brahmās; it states that the universe is pervaded by the Pañcha-brahmās and the man who is able to realise this attains liberation from bondage (saṁsara). Īśāna is the ākāśa, Tatpurusha air, Aghōra fire, Vāmadēva water, and Sadyōjāta earth. But Śrīkaṇṭhāśivāchārya views them somewhat differently, in his Brahma-nimāṁsa-bhāṣya he tells us that Sadāśiva is sound (śabda), Īśvara touch (sparśa), Rudra form (rūpa), Vishṇu taste (rasa) and Brahmā smell (gandha).

According to the Liṅga-purāṇa, jñāna, ichchhā and kriyā are the three eyes of Paramēśvara. The desire to create that first arose in the mind of Paramēśvara is called the Śiva-tatva, which is also known as the ichchhā-śakti-tatva. When there are both the jñāna-śakti and the kṛiyāśakti blended in Paramēśvara he goes by the name of Sadāśiva when the former śakti is predominant and Mahēśvara when the latter śakti is predominant and Śuddha-vidyā when they are both equally balanced. When Īvara absorbs in himself the universe he is known as the Purusha and Sainsāri when he has manifested himself in the form of the gross material universe.

Thus, it is seen that the exact idea involved in viewing Mahēśvara as of five aspects is explained by each authority in its own way, however, the majority of them agree in taking the aspects as the manifestations of the Supreme deity in the elements of nature such as fire, air, earth, etc.

These eight deities are required to be represented in sculpture and set up in Śiva temples. The general description of these images is found in the Vishṇudharmōttara and the Pūrva-Kāraṇā-gama. the Amśumadbhedāgama gives the separate descriptions of a few of the aṣṭa-mūrtis. In the first authority the eight mūrtis are said to resemble Śiva, wearing on their head jaṭāmakuṭas embellished with the crescent moon, adorned with appropriate ornaments and carrying in two of their hands the khaṭvāṅga and the triśūla and keeping the other hands in the varada and the abhaya poses. This description is amplified by the addition of a few more details by the Pūrva-Kāraṇāgama. It states that they should all have three eyes and be draped in red silk garments and that their colours are respectively white, black, red, kṛishṇa (a kind of blue, or slate colour), pale pink, dark-brown (as the colour of musk or kastūri), coral red and deep blue.

According to the Aṁsumadbhūdāgama, Śarva should have the white colour of the śaṅkha or of the moon and be of a pacific appearance. On his head there should be the jaṭāmakuta in which is tied a crescent moon, the other parts of his body should be adorned with all the ornaments appropriate to them. In the back hands he should be carrying the khaḍga and the khēṭaka and his front hands should be in the varada and abhaya poses and he should be standing upon a padmapīṭha. Bhīma is the terrific aspect among the eight mūrtis of Śiva. His complexion is deep red; his appearance must be frightful and there should also be side tusks. He should be clothed in white garments, adorned with a jaṭa-makuta, and all other ornaments. His two hands must be carrying the śūla and the pāśa and the remaining two should be held in the varada and the abhaya poses. It is stated that Mahādēva should be shaped like Paśupati; Paśupati should be sculptured like Śarva and set up in a temple. And Bhava's description is exactly similar to that of Bhīma, excepting that Bhava is a pacific aspect, and consequently has a calm, peaceful look and is without the side tusks, the criterion and concomitant of the ugra or terrific aspects, the descriptions of the other deities belonging to this group are not found in my copy of the Aṁśumadbhēdāgama.

As far as it is known, there do not exist any sculptured representations of the groups, the Ēkādaśa-Rudras, the Vidyēśvaras or the Mūrtyashtaka, at least in any one of the South Indian temples and I do not know if in Northern India these are found anywhere, either receiving pūjā or not.

(vii). LOCAL LEGENDS AND IMAGES BASED UPON STHALAMĀHĀTMYAS.

Besides the various aspects of Śiva described in this and the previous chapters, which are common to the whole of India and are recognized by the Purāṇas, Itihāsas, etc., there are very many images which are met with in different temples and which are associated with certain legends peculiar to each of these temples. For instance, at Jambukēśvara near Śrīraṅgam, an elephant and a spider are said to have worshipped Śiva in a grove of white jambu tree; we meet with sculptured representations of an elephant pouring with its trunk the water which it had brought from the river Kāvēri on the head of a liṅga and a spider weaving its web in a corner to protect the liṅga from the rays of the sun. The legend in connection with Ēkāṃraṇāthasvāmin of Kāñchi is that the goddess Parvati made a penance to Śiva standing on one leg, with hands uplifted on the head in the āṇḍālī pose, Śiva being pleased with her devotions appeared to her under an āmra (mango) tree. These pieces of sculpture peculiar to each place are the outcome of the sthala-māhātmya written generally at some later period of the history of the temple and is usually based upon some imaginary event that had occurred in it. The one māhātmya that has contributed very largely to the multiplication of images of Śiva is the Hālāsya-māhātmya or the one pertaining to the god Śiva at Madura, the capital of the Pāṇḍyas. The god Sundarēśvara (the name of the God Śiva enshrined in Madura) is said to have indulged in sixty-four līlās or sports, which are also narrated in later works such as Śivalīlārṇava. In all these līlās, Śiva assumed human and other forms for the purpose of succouring help to some one in need of it. For example, reference may be made to legends according to which he was once pleased to grant heaven to a pious crane; he taught the Mṛityuñ-jaya-mantra to a black-bird to protect itself and its species from the aggressions of stronger species; he once took pity upon a litter of motherless pigs and acted the part of their mother and eventually caused them to be re-born as the sons of a human being and bestowed upon them the office of the ministers of the Pāṇḍya king and so on. All these sports of Śiva at Madura are materialised into stone sculptures which are to be seen everywhere in the extensive temple not only of Madura but also in temples situated in many places adjoining Madura. Since the local legends are so many and the sculptures representing these are numberless, it is practically impossible to deal with them in a work dealing with images which are of universal acceptance.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Two illustrations are however added to give the reader a notion about the nature of such representations. The first, figs. 1 and 2, Pl. CXX, is one symbolising the legend connected with the Ēkāmrānāthasvāmin temple at Conjeevaram. Pārvati, according to this legend, was doing penance on the bed of the river Vēgavati; she had set up a līṅga and was offering worship to it daily with intense piety. To disturb her penance with a view to test her mental firmness, god Śiva suddenly sent freshes in the river Vēgavati so as to sweep away the līṅga and the other objects of worship set up by Pārvatī. When thus suddenly beset with difficulties, Parvatī, not knowing how to avert them, hugged the līṅga to her bosom, so that if it was swept out, she might also perish with it. Śiva, pleased with the firmness of devotion of Pārvatī, appeared to her in person under a mango tree (which stood singly, ēlāmmra) and was joined with his consort. In fig 1, Pl. CXX, Pārvatī is seen doing penance and fig. 2 on the same plate shows her hugging passionately the līṅga symbol when it was threatened to be washed away in the flood.

The second illustration, fig. 2, Pl. CXIX, is of Śiva who took the form of a sow to suckle a number of the young ones of a pig which was killed in a hunt and which were dying for want of succour. Here, Śiva is represented with the usual four arms in two of which he is seen carrying the paraśu and the mṛga, while with two others he is seen hugging a number of little pigs, which are drinking lustily the milk from the teats of their foster-mother, while some are squeaking and rolling down on the earth

SUBRAHMANYA.

SUBRAHMANYA.

SUBRAHMANYA is almost exclusively a South Indian deity. There is not a village, however small, which does not possess a shrine for Subrahmanya. In fact the popularity of this deity with the South Indian is so great as to induce him to build shrines for him in all places such as towns, villages, gardens, mountain tops and other odd places. Strangely enough Subrahmanya is less known and less worshipped in Northern India; there are not many temples of this god in Northern India. In Bengal it is stated that he is worshipped by disreputable women on certain occasions, while in the Bombay Presidency no sumāṅgalī (a woman whose husband is alive) would visit the temple of Kārttikēyasvāmin (Subrahmanya).

The birth of Kārttikēya or Subrahmanya is given at some length in the Bālakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa. Śiva, after he was married to Umā, began to indulge in gratifying his love towards her; a thousand years of the gods passed thus but no issue was born. The gods in the meanwhile becoming alarmed that the offspring which might be born to Mahādēva would be of an extraordinary character, entreated him to practise austerity. Śiva acceded to their prayer but inquired what would become of the seed which he had already discharged. The gods replied that this should be received by the earth and Agni and Vāyu should enter it. Agni accordingly entered it and produced a white mountain, where Kārttikēya was born. Out of gratitude, the gods worshipped Śiva; the consort of Śiva cursed the gods that their wives should become barren, because she was denied the pleasure of becoming a mother.

In another place in the same work the birth of Kārttikēya is described differently. While Śiva, the lord of the gods, was performing penance, the other gods went to Brahmā and asked him to provide them with a general in the place of Śiva, their former commander, who had since taken to austerities. To this Brahmā replied that in consequence of the curse of Umā no sons could be born to the gods; but he suggested that Agni could beget a son on Gaṅgā and that the offspring might become the general of the gods. In obedience to the advice of Brahmā, the gods went to the mount Kailāsa and appointed Agni to carry out their wish. Agni accordingly consorted with Gaṅgā and begot Kārttikēya.

SUBRAHMANYA.

The Vana-parvan of the Mahābhārata has another account of the birth of Kārttikēya. Indra, whose army (dēvasēna) was defeated by the dānavas, was meditating upon his reverses, when he heard the cry of a female calling for help and invoking a husband to afford her protection. Indra seeing that she had been seized by the demon Kēśin remonstrated with him. But the asura did not heed it but hurled his club against Indra. Indra cut it off with his vajra and Kēśin was finally defeated and driven away. Indra then learnt from the woman he had rescued that she was called Dēvasēna (the army of the gods) and that she had a sister named Daityasēna (the army of the demons) and that they both were the daughters of Prajāpati. She added that her sister liked Kēśin, but she herself did not, therefore she requested Indra to secure for her a proper husband who would be able to overcome all the enemies of the gods. Indra took Dēvasēna to Brahmā and desired him to provide her with a valorous husband. Brahmā promised that the help-mate of Dēvasēna would soon be born, under the circumstances described below.

Vasishtha and other ṛishis performed an yājña to which the gods headed by Indra went to receive oblations. Agni, being invoked, descended from the sun, entered the fire, received oblations of the ṛishis and presented them to the gods. Then he beheld the wives of the ṛishis and became perturbed by desires. His heart felt distressed because he failed to obtain the wives of these brāhmaṇas; he therefore resolved to abandon his corporeal form and went away to the forest. Meanwhile, Svāhā, the daughter of Dakṣha, who was loving Agni from her youth, discovering the cause of Agni's discomfiture resolved to take the forms of the wives of the ṛishis and to present herself to Agni. Assuming first the form of Sivā, the wife of Āṅgīrasa, Svāhā addressed Agni thus. "Agni, you ought to love me, who am troubled with love for you. I am the wife of the ṛishi Āṅgīrasa. If you will not do so, look upon me as dead". Agni embraced her with joy and delighted her. Assuming the form of a Gāruḍī bird to avoid detection, Svāhā issued from the forest and beholding a white mountain surrounded by palisades of arrows, guarded by seven-hooded snakes and rākshasas and others, went quickly to its summit which was difficult of access and threw the seed into a golden receptacle. Thus did this goddess enjoy the company of Agni by assuming successively the forms of the wives of the ṛishis. But she could not take the divine form of Arundhati, the wife of Vasishṭha, owing to the power of the latter's austerity and her obedience to her husband. Six times was the seed of Agni thrown by the enamoured Svābhā into the receptacle from the pratipada day (the first day of a fortnight). The collected seed which was discharged (skanna) by Agni generated a son and gave to the child the character of Skanda. Kumāra was born with six heads, twelve arms, ears, eyes and feet, one neck and one belly. He was made the commander of the army of the gods and Dēvasēna was married to him.

SUBRAHMANYA.

The wives of the six rishis who were discarded on suspicion by their husbands repaired to Skanda and complained to him that they were unjustly abandoned by their husbands and consequently became degraded from their former position and entreated him to secure for them heaven (svarga). Skanda granted them their desire and kept them with him. Svābhā then approached Skanda and informed him that she was his genuine mother and then told him that from her childhood she loved Agni but that her love was unrequited by him and desired that she should somehow be made to live perpetually with Agni. Skanda conferred this boon upon her saying that whatever oblations of brāhmaṇas was introduced by hymns, they should always lift it and throw it in the fire saying 'Svāhā' and that Agni should dwell continually with her.

Then Prajāpati asked Skanda to go to Mahā-dēva, the vexer of Tripura. Addressing Skanda as the unconquered, Prajāpati informed him that he had been produced for the good of the gods and of all the world by Rudra who had entered Agni and Umā who had entered into Svāhā. Skanda was received with due honour by the bull-bannered Rudra with his consort Umā.

It is stated about Skanda that because he was honoured by Rudra he was the son of Rudra. Again the brāhmaṇas call Agni Rudra, consequently Kārttikēya is the son of Rudra; the seed which was discharged by Rudra became a white mountain and this seed of Agni was formed by the Kṛttikās on the white mountain. Skanda, that most eminent deity, being born of Agni, who was Rudra and from Svāhā and the six wives of the ṛishis was the son of Rudra. Thus then it will be seen a sort of confusion arose about the real parentage of Skanda and attempts are made to establish the identity of Agni with Rudra. This identity is based upon the Vēdic assertions that Agni is the same as Rudra.

SUBRAHMANYA.

Almost the same account is given in all the later works such as the Kumārasambhava, etc.

The āgamas state that the temple for Subrahmaṇya may be constructed on all sides of a town except the east and it might face any direction. These temples may be built in capital cities, in towns, villages, on the tops of mountains, on the banks of rivers, in gardens, forests or under large trees. They may stand separately as a svayampṛadhāna temple or be attached to some others, such as that of Śiva. Different kinds of central shrines are prescribed for the temple of Subrahmaṇya; these may contain from one to seven talas (storeys) and may be surrounded by prākāras or circuits and adorned with maṇḍapas or pavilions, and other adjuncts. As usual the size of the shrine of this god is also determined with reference to the height of the image to be set up in it. The temples of Subrahmaṇya are to be adorned with either peacocks or elephants placed in the corners of the vimāna, where generally Garuḍa or Nandi is seen in the temple of Viṣṇu or Śiva respectively.

In a svayampṛadhāna temple of Subrahmaṇya there are required to be set up eight parivāra-dēvatas, namely, Yakṣbēndra, Rākṣhasēndra, Piśāchēndra, Bhūtarāṭ, Gandharva, Kinnara, Daityanāyaka and Dānavādhipa. The figures of these are to be placed on the eight cardinal points of the prākāra; Yakshēndra being on the east, Rākshasēndra on the south-east and so on. These Parivāra-dēvatās are to be sculptured as having two or four arms and they should be of dark complexion and terrific look. If they have four arms, two of the hands are to be held in the varada and the abhaya poses, while the remaining two should carry the khaḍga and the khēṭaka. But if they have only two arms, the hands should keep the khaḍga and the khēṭaka.

Besides the parivāra-dēvatās mentioned above, the temple of Subrahmaṇya is required to have eight śarīra-pālakās or body-guards. They are named Shaṇmukha, Śaktipāni, Kārttikēya, Guha, Skanda, Mayūravāhana, Sēnāni and Śaktihastavān. They are also, like the parivāra-dēvatās, required to be represented with four or two arms; if they have four arms, two hands out of the four should be held on the chest in the añjali pose and the remaining two are to keep in them the vajra and the padma. The śarīra-pālakās may have one or six faces and must be located on the eight cardinal points beginning from the east as in the case of the parivāra-dēvatās, but perhaps in a second āvaraṇa. If they cannot be represented regularly by sculptured figures, at least pūṭhas representing them must be set up, with a peacock or an elephant kept in front of them.

The Kumāra-tantra mentions a much larger number of parivāra-dēvatās, eight, twelve, sixteen or thirty-two dēvatas are prescribed in it. If eight dēvatas are to be set up, we are told that on the east, facing the deity, should be the figure of an elephant that on the south-east, Śāsta, in the south, Brahmā; on the south-west, the Sapta-mātrikās; on the west, Jyēsthā, on the north-west Durgā; on the north, Kshētrapa and on the north-east, Sumitraka. The names of the parivāra-dēvatas* of the groups of twelve, etc., are given in the foot-note below.

* The names of the twelve parivāra-dēvatās are, the elephant, Sūrya, Śāsta, Brahmā, Yama, Sapta-mātrikās, Varuṇa, Agastya, Durgā, Nārada, Śiśa and Sumitra. The following are the names of the sixteen parivāra-dēvatās—the elephant, Brahmā, Agastya, Nārada, Sumitraka, Śukra, Brihaspati, Durgā, Diti, Aditi, Chandra, Sūrya, Śāsta, Mahā-lakshmi and Bhārati and the Sapta-mātrikās.

To make up the thirty three parivāra-dēvatas, the following are added to the above mentioned sixteen deities, namely, the Ashta-dīpālakas, Sudōha, Sureśa, Sumukha, Bhṛingi, Vāsuki, Ashtavara (vakra ?) Bhṛingi (Bhṛigu ?) Dakṣha-Prajāpati, Virabhadra, Śukra, Bhū, Jyēsthā and two others.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

In the north-east corner of the temple of Subrahmanya should be set up either the image of Skanda-Chaṇḍa or the famous Sākalya-piṭha. Skanda-Chaṇḍa might have four or two arms ; in the first case, the two front hands are to be held in the abhaya and the varada poses respectively, while the back ones should carry the vajrāyudha and a lotus flower.

The image of Subrahmanya is seen sculptured in different ways. We have instances of standing and seated figures of this deity, some have six faces while others only one, some have two arms while others have from four to twelve arms, sometimes the image of Subrahmanya is seen with that of one Śakti (goddess) and often with two. He is further represented as a boy who has not undergone the upanayana (or the initiation) ceremony or as one who has undergone it. Then again he appears as a youth of resplendent beauty. The seated figure is either on a padmāsana or on a peacock. It is laid down as a rule that if the figure is a seated one, it should have only two arms ; if a standing one, four, and lastly, if it is seated upon a peacock, it may have six, eight or twelve arms. The sitting posture is recommended for representing the yōga (dhruva) bēra, the standing posture for the bhōga (utsava) bēras and the figure seated on vehicles for dhyāna bēras (images meant for fixing one's thoughts upon and meditating). The image with two arms is said to be sātvik, one with four arms rājasik and one with more arms than four tāmasik in nature.

Subrahmaṇya with two arms may be sculptured in any one of the five following manners :—

- (i) in the first mode the image might keep in the right hand a padma and the left hand may be resting upon the hip (katyavalambita);
- (ii) in the second mode the right hand may be held in the abhaya pose and the left in the katyavalambita pose;
- (iii) in the third mode the right hand may carry a daṇḍa and the left hand may be in the katyavalambita pose;
- (iv) in the fourth mode the right hand may carry the śaktyāyudha and the left the vajra, and
- (v) in the fifth mode the right hand may carry a śaktyāyudha and the left a kukkuṭa (a fowl).

In the case of the figure of Subrahmaṇya with four arms the hands are required to be kept in any one of the seven poses and to carry articles as given in the following table :—

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Subrahmanya with two or four arms is said to be capable of giving siddhi to his worshippers.

The figure of Subrahmanya with six arms should have in its right hands abhaya, khaḍga and śakti; and in the left hands khētaka, akṣhamālā and kukkuta. The image of Subrahmanya with eight arms should be represented as carrying in its hands the vajra, śakti, abhaya, varada, khaḍga, khētaka, bāṇa and dhanus; or, they may keep the padma, vajra, śakti, abhaya, varada, khaḍga, khētaka and pāśa.

Subrahmanya with twelve arms may be sculptured in six different ways, the following table furnishes the information regarding the poses of the hands and the objects carried in them :—

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

The āgamas mentioned the appropriate forms of the image of Subrahmanya that should be set up in temples erected for that deity in towns of different kinds * the image that must grace a temple

* According to the Kāmikāgama towns are divided into the following classes according to its residents, etc. —

The village resided in by learned brāhmaṇas is called a maṅgala or an agrahāra. The place which has a mixed population of brāhmaṇas and other castes is said to be grāma. The place where a rich landlord lives with only his tenants and dependants is called a kuṭika or an ēkabhōga, (kuṭika is a Tamil word, kud, rendered thus in Sanskrit). That portion of a pura (town) which is inhabited by brāhmaṇas and surrounded by their gardens is called a kharvaṭa. A place full of trading population of all classes and is visited by maritime people of other nations and is situated on the sea-coast is called a paṭṭaṇa. The suburb in a vana (forest) or rājya solely inhabited by Śūdras is called either a kaṇṭaka, khēṭaka or grāma. The capital of a subordinate chief is called a śibira and the town where the elephants and horses of the king are stationed is a sēnasthāna and that where the king lives and has a large population of all classes, and is provided with many secret passages is called a sēnāmukha. That portion of a town where travellers and sannyāsins are fed and lodged is called a maṭha. The town where large military forces are stationed is a vidyāsthāna, if the latter has in it the palace of the king also, it goes by the name of rājadhāni. Those places which adjoin grāmas, etc., are known by the names of kubja (Tam. kuppan) and chērika (Tam. chēri). The quarters occupied by weavers in a grāma, etc., is a nagara.

SUBRAHMANYA.

constructed for this deity in the rājadhāni (the capital city) of a reigning sovereign is to be one with six faces, six arms, twelve eyes and twelve or six ears. It should keep in its hands the śakti, khaḍga, akṣhamālā, abhaya, kukkuṭa and khēṭaka. The image that should be set up in a grāma or a prāsāda (palace) should have twelve arms; the right hands of this image should carry the śakti, musala, khaḍga, chakra, pāśa and abhaya; and the left hands, the vajra, dhanus, khēṭaka, śikhi-dhvaja (a banner made of peacock feathers), aṅkuśa and varada. (See Pl. CXXVIII.) This figure should be of the colour of the rising sun and be draped in red clothes and be adorned with a karaṇḍa-makuṭa, and the yajñōpavīta and be seated on a peacock with, on either side, a figure of a dēvī. Though different types of images of Subrahmanya are prescribed for consecration in different kinds of villages there is no positive objection to any of the five types of the image of this deity, namely, those with two, four, six, eight or twelve arms, being set up in any kind of town.

Subrahmanya is known by several names, the chief among them are Kārttikēya, Shanmukha, or Shaḍānana, Śaravaṇabhava or Sarajanman, Sēnāni, Tārakajit, Krauñchabhēttā, Gaṅgāputra, Guha, Agnibhū, Skanda and Svāminātha. Most of his epithets have reference to the circumstances of his birth. Śiva cast his seed into Agni who being unable to bear it cast it into the river Ganges; hence Skanda is called Agnibhū and Gaṅgāputra. The seed was then transferred to the six Kṛitikas when they went to bathe in the Ganges, each of whom therefore conceived and begot a son; all these children afterwards became combined in one being having six heads and twelve arms and eyes. Hence he became known by the names of Kārttikēya, Shaṇmukha and Shaḍānana. According to another account the seed of Śiva was cast by the river Ganges into a thicket of reeds (śara) and the boy who came out of the thicket of grass came to be known as the Śarajamīna. Subrahmaṇya pierced the Krauñcha mountain and hence he was called Krauñchabhēta. He commanded the army of the dēvas against the asura Tāraka whom he vanquished and killed. Therefore he got the names Dēvasēnāpati and Tārakāri. He is called Guha because he lived in a receptacle for six days before he was fully formed. Because he was born from the discharged seed (skanna) of Śiva he was known as Skanda.

The most characteristic weapon of Subrahmaṇya is the śakti; the Mārkaṇḍeya-purāṇa gives a short account of the origin of this weapon thus: Sūrya

SUBRAHMANYA.

(the sun) was once so powerful that his heat was causing damage to the world. Viśvakarman, the celestial mechanic, contrived to abstract a portion of the solar glory and rendered him innocuous. 'From the power taken away from Sūrya, Viśvakarman fashioned' the śaktyāyudha for the use of Subrahmanya. It is worth noting that a portion of the solar glory was transferred to Subrahmanya, who, according to the Bhaviṣyat-purāṇa, took his seat near Sūrya when the dāityas attacked him and when the gods rallied round him for his support. The same purāṇa informs us that the dvārapālakas of Subrahmanya are Sūrya under the name of Rājña and Śiva under the name of Srausba. These facts coupled with the information regarding the origin of Subrahmanya distinctly point to its origin to the sun-myth. We saw in the first instance that Agni was invoked by the ṛishis for receiving the oblations in their yajña and that he descended from the sun; the Mahābhārata states that on the day the ṛishis began their yajña the sun and the moon were together, that is, the day was a new-moon day; beginning from the pratipada day the seed of Agni was gathered for six days and on the śaṣṭhī tithi Subrahmanya of the colour of the rising sun came into existence. His dvārapālakas, we saw above, are Sūrya and Śiva (who is the same as Agni or Rudra).

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

A dhyāna-śloka current in some parts of S. India actually describes him as Sūrya. All these facts clearly point to the sun-myth as the origin of Subrahmanya; his six heads perhaps represent the six ṛitus or seasons, the twelve arms, the twelve months; the kukkūṭa or the fowl the harbinger of the rising sun and the peacock whose feathers display a marvellous blending of all colours represents the luminous glory of the sun; the śaktyā-yudha is also of solar origin

Corresponding to the various names of Subrahmanya are images whose descriptions are found in almost all the āgamas. The following are some of the important aspects of Subrahmanya dealt with in the Kumāra-tantra, viz.,

To this list are added a few more by the Śrītatvanidhi; the descriptions of these are given briefly below.

SUBRAHMANYA.

Śaktidhara : This aspect of Subrahmanya should have a single face and only two arms. The left hand should bear a vajra and the right one the śakti; the latter weapon is said to represent the icchā, jñāna and krīyā śaktis. The following description of Jñānaśakti-Subrahmanya is found in the Śrītatvanidhi : this form of the deity should have only one face and four arms and his head adorned with a jaṭumakuṭa ornamented with rubies, he should wear a garland of cactus flowers, and his body should be smeared with a paste of sandal and there must be on his chest a white yajñōpavīta. In three out of the four hands there should be the śakti, kuṅkuṭa and vajra and the fourth hand should be held in the abhaya pose. It is therein stated that this aspect of Subrahmanya is the embodiment of jñāna-śakti.

Skanda . According to the Kumāra-tantra this aspect should be represented with one face and two arms and should be of the colour of the lotus. The loins are to be bound by a broad belt and the only clothing which this figure should possess is the kaupīna. The right hand should keep a daṇḍa while the left one should rest upon the hip (kaṭyavalambita). This aspect of Subrahmanya is popularly known as the Palaniyāṇḍavar. This is the description which is given in the Śrītatvanidhi for Vēlāyudha-Subrahmanya. This latter work, however, gives quite a different description of Skanda which is as follows. This aspect of Subrahmanya is required to possess, as in the previous one, one face set with two eyes, and four arms. He should be seated upon a lotus flower (padmāsana). His head is to be surrounded by a prabhā-maṇḍala; on the head there should be the usual karaṇḍa-makuṭa adorned with a wreath of flowers; there must also be ornaments made of rubies and on the waist a broad girdle of fine workmanship. The front two hands should be kept in the varada and the abhaya poses while the back hands should carry the kukkuṭa and the vajra. The colour of this aspect of the deity is said to be that of smoke.

Sēnāpati: This aspect should have the brilliance of the sun and should possess six faces and twelve eyes. One of the arms of Sēnāpati should pass round the waist of his dēvī, who should be seated upon his left lap; the corresponding right hand should keep a lotus. The other hands should hold the following objects in them: śūla, khēṭaka, vajra, dhanus, gadā, ghaṇṭā, kukkuṭa and abhaya.

Under the name Dēvasēnāpati, the Śrītatvanidhi gives the following description: He should have one face, two eyes and four arms : two of the hands should be held in the abhaya and varada poses respectively and the remaining two should carry the śaṅkha and the chakra ; the colour of this aspect of Subrahmanya is said to be black. He should be adorned with all ornaments, and should have a white yajñōpavīta and his body should have a coating of finely smelling sandal paste. The face must be very pretty and a smile must be playing about his lips.

Subrahmanya : This aspect of Skanda should be of the colour of kuṅkuma (saffron) and be adorned with kēyūra, hāra and other ornaments. One of the right hands should be held in the abhaya and in the rest must be the śakti, kukkuṭa, and a padma. The colour of this aspect of the deity should be that of the rising sun and that of the sandal paste and the clothing red. Or, the figure may have only two arms of which one should rest upon the hip (katyavalambita) and the other hand be held in the abhaya pose.

Gaṇaṇhana has also only one face, two eyes and four arms ; in one of the left hands he should hold the kukkuṭa while the other should be kept in the varada pose, in one of the right hands there should be the śakti and the other should be held in the abhaya pose.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Śaravaṇabhava should have six heads, twelve eyes and twelve arms. Two of his hands are to be in the abhaya and the varada poses while the remaining ones should carry in them the śakti, ghaṇṭa, dhvaja, padma, kukkuṭa, pāśa, daṇḍa, ṭaṅka, bāṇa and dhanus. The complexion of this aspect is yellow ; the face should resemble a full-blown lotus.

The Śrītatvanidhi, as usual, gives an entirely different description of Śaravaṇabhava. According to this authority Śaravaṇabhava should have only one face, three eyes and six arms, be of the colour of the rising sun and be seated upon a lion. The body should be covered with ashes (bhasma or vibhūti). There should be in the hands flowery arrows, a bow made of sugar-cane, khaḍga, khṛtaka, vajra and the kukkuṭa.

Kārttikēya should have six faces and six arms and be of the colour of the rising sun. Two of his front hands should be kept in the abhaya and the varada poses, while the rest should carry vajra, khṛtaka, śakti and khaḍga.

According to the Śrītatvanidhi Kārttikēya should have one face with three eyes, ten arms and the complexion of the rising sun. There should be a fruit (or leaf) of the bilvā tree on the head and in the right hands the śūla, the chakra, the aṅkuśa, and abhaya; in the left hands the tōmara, the pāśa, the śaṅkha, and the vajra and varada. He should have his peacock vehicle by his side. The complexion of this aspect of Subrahmanya should also be that of the rising sun.

Kumāra should hold in his right hands the śakti and the khaḍga and in the left ones kukkuṭa and the khēṭaka. The Srītatvanidhi substitutes the abhaya and varada in the place of khaḍga and khēṭaka in the above description.

Shaṇmukha: The colour of Shaṇmukha should be that of kunīkuma (saffron) and he should be seated on the peacock. As his name indicates he should have six faces, twelve eyes and twelve arms; in the right hands he should have the śakti, bāṇa, the khaḍga, dhvaja, gadā and abhaya; and in the left ones dhanus, vajra, padma, kaṭaka-hasta and varada (and one more object which is perhaps the khēṭaka). Shaṇmukha is here mentioned as the nephew of Viṣṇu. The Srītatvanidhi mentions the śaṅkha, chakra, kukkuṭa, pāśa and hala as among the objects held by the hands of Shaṇmukha. It also states that on either side of Shaṇmukha there should be standing two dēvīs called Jayā and Vijayā.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Tāarakāri : The figure of Tāarakāri is required to be sculptured with twelve arms, in the hands of which there should be the aṅkuṣa, dhvaja, khaḍga, kaṭaka-hasta, abhaya, pāśa, chakra, musala, śakti vajra, varada and khēṭaka. The colour of Tāarakāri, is described as equal to a crore of Aruṇas shining at the same time. According to the Śrītatvanidhi, Tāarakāri should have only one face and three eyes and he should be seated upon an elephant carrying in two of the right hands the khaḍga and the śakti and one of them held in the abhaya pose ; one of the left hands should be in the varada pose and the remaining hands should keep the khēṭaka and the akṣhamālā.

Krauñchabhēttā : This aspect of Subrahmanya should have six faces and eight arms. In the right hands there should be the khaḍga, śakti, abhaya and bāṇa ; and in the left ones varada, vajra, dhanus and khēṭaka. His complexion is to be that of the lotus flower.

Krauñchabhēttā according to the Śrītatvanidhi should be represented with a single face and four arms and three eyes. Two of the hands should be kept in the varada and abhaya poses and the remaining hands should carry flowery arrows and a bow made of sugarcane ; or, the front two hands should be shown as breaking the Krauñcha mountain. There should be near him his peacock vehicle.

Sēnāni should also possess twelve arms and twelve eyes; the hands should have in them khaḍga, chakra, aṅkuśa, śakti, abhaya, śūla, varaḍa, padma, daṇḍa and gadā.

Brahma-śāstā : This is the aspect of Subrahmanya in which he put down the pride of Brahmā by exposing his ignorance of the Vēdas. He should be represented with a single face and four arms; he should have only two eyes. In the back hands there should be the akṣhamālā and the kamaṇḍalu and the front hands should be held in the varaḍa and abhaya poses. The colour of Brahma-śāstā should be the red of the lotus flower.

Bālasvāmi is the aspect of Subrahmanya as a child. If he is sculptured as standing by the side of his parents, as in the Sōmāskanda aspect of Śiva, he should be represented as a child carrying a lotus in each hand; if, however, he is shown separately, he may be sculptured with a padma in his right hand and with the left hand resting upon the hip (kaṭyavalambita). The colour of this aspect is also red.

Śikhivāhana is to be of the colour of coral and to have a single face and four arms. In one of the hands there should be held the śakti and in the other the vajra, while the remaining ones should be held in the abhaya and the varada poses respectively. He is said to be the destroyer of the enemies of the gods.

Vaṭṭikalyāṇasundara : In this aspect Subrahmanya is sculptured as being married to Valli. He should be represented in this case as carrying in the back right hand the akṣhamālā and the front hand should be held in the abhaya pose ; the front left hand should rest upon the hip and the back hand should carry a kamaṇḍalu. Brahmā with a sruva in his hand should be shown as officiating in the ceremonies in front of the fire that should be sculptured as burning in a kuṇḍa. Viṣṇu should keep in his hands a water-vessel ready to pour water in the act of giving the girl in marriage to the bridegroom. A host of gods and goddesses should be shown as offering praises to the married couple. Both the bride and the groom should be adorned with all ornaments appropriate to the occasion. The colour of Subrahmanya in this aspect also is red.

The Śrītatvanidhi adds the description of the following aspects of Subrahmanya, namely, Agni-jāta-Subrahmanya, Saurabhēya-S., Gāṅgēya-S. Guha-S., Brahmachāri-S., and Dēśika-S.

SUBRAHMANYA.

Agniyāta-Subrahmanya should have two faces, eight arms and a white complexion ; his neck should be of black colour ; he should carry in three out of the four right hands the sruva, an akṣhamālā and a khaḍga and the remaining hand should be kept in the svastika pose ; in three of the left hands there should be the vajra, kukkūṭa, khēṭaka and an ājya-pātra (vessel of ghee or clarified butter). He should be sculptured as engaged in the act of offering fire sacrifice.

Saurabhēya-Subrahmanya should have four faces, eight eyes and eight arms and should be seated upon a kamalāsana ; in the right hands there should be the śakti, a lotus, flowery arrows and abhaya ; and in the left hands vajra, a bow made of sugar-cane, a śūla, and varada. He should be standing with his right leg kept firmly on the ground and the left leg somewhat bent. His colour should be that of the lotus flower

Gāṅgēya-Subrahmanya is required to be represented with a single face, three eyes and four arms. The head must be adorned with a karaṇḍa-makūṭa ; he should be standing upon a makara (a kind of fish) and should be carrying a flag on which is painted a kukkūṭa, and should be adorned with nīlōtpala flowers. In his right hands should be a paraśu and a pūrṇa-kumbha (a vessel filled with water), in the left hands he should keep an araṇi (a piece of wood which is used in generating fire by friction) and a kukkūṭa. The colour of this aspect of Subrahmanya is that of gold.

It might be noticed that in all these aspects the descriptions are such as to suit the nature of the aspect, for example Subrahmanya, the son of Agni, is said to have two faces, the same number as possessed by Agni, he carries an ājya-pātra sruva and other objects necessary for making fire-offerings. Similarly, in the case of the Gaṅgēya-Subrahmanya, or Subrahmanya the son of Gaṅgā, he is required, like Gaṅgā, to be standing upon a makara, carry a pūrṇakumbha and adorned with nīlōtpala or water-lilies, objects characteristic of rivers.

Guha-Subrahmanya should have one face, three eyes and four arms. His head should be adorned with a kirita made of gold set with rubies. In the right hands there should be the vajra and the śula and the left hands should be held in the varada and the abhaya poses. The colour of Guha is black and that of his clothes white. His Dēvi should be by his side and they should look like a newly married couple.

Brahmachāri-Subrahmanya : Subrahmanya in this aspect should have two eyes, two arms and be standing upon a padma. He must have a tuft of hair on his head, a yajnōpavīta, mauñji (grass girdle) and kaupīna. The right leg should be firmly placed upon the padma and the left one slightly bent and rested upon it. In the right hand there should be a daṇḍa and in the left a vajra. His complexion should be red.

Dēśika-Subrahmanya : This is the aspect in which Subrahmanya taught Śiva, his own father, the significance of the sacred syllable ōm. As a teacher he should be represented as possessing one face, six arms and as seated upon the peacock. His head should be adorned with a karaṇḍa-makuṭa ; two of his hands should carry the śakti, one an akṣhamālā and two others kept in the varada and the abhaya poses ; the remaining hand should perhaps be held in the chinmudrā pose. Śiva in the aspect of a disciple is called the Śiṣhya-bhāva-mūrti. The Mānasāra gives a description of the form of Śiṣhyabhāvamūrti. Śiva should be seated in front of his teacher Subrahmanya cross-legged, with one of his right hands kept closing his mouth and another kept on the chest in the jñāna-mudrā pose ; the other two hands should carry the ṭaṅka and the mṛiga. He should have a white complexion and his face should resemble the full-moon. His head should be adorned with a crescent moon. Pārvati, his consort, should also be standing by his side.

Pls. CXXI-CXXIX illustrate the various aspects of Subrahmaṇya. Fig. 1, Pl. CXXI, belongs to the collection of the late Mr. M. K. Nārāyaṇa-svāmi Ayyar and represents Skanda or Vēlāyudha-Subrahmaṇya. In the right hand of the image is a daṇḍa and a śakti is kept resting on his right arm. The left hand rests upon the hip. The image is clothed with only a kaupīna and wears the ornaments generally worn by boys. This is a modern piece of work.

Fig. 2 on the same plate is the photograph of the image of Kuṇāra belonging to the Śiva temple at Tiruppāiatturai. The image has four arms; in the right hand at the back there is the śakti and in the back left hand the vajra; the front right and the left hands are kept in the abhaya and the varada poses respectively. A śaktyāyudha rests upon the right front arm.

Pl. CXXII is the reproduction of the photograph of Subrahmaṇya with his two consorts Dēvasēna and Vallī to be found in the Nāgēśvara-svāmin temple at Kumbhakōṇam. It is precisely similar to the figure of the Tiruppālatturai temple. Herein, Subrahmaṇya has behind him his peacock.

SUBRAHMANYA.

The description of the Dēvis of Subrahmaṇya is given as follows in the Kumāra-tantra : Mahāvalli should be of black complexion and should have a smiling face. She should stand with her right leg kept firmly on the ground and the left leg kept somewhat bent and placed on it. She should be holding in her left hand a padma (lotus) and her right hand should be hanging by her side. The complexion of Dēvasēna is red and she should also have a smiling face and standing with her left leg kept firmly on the ground and the right one somewhat bent. She should carry in her right hand a nīlōtpala flower, and the left one should be hanging. These descriptions are rigidly observed in the sculpture of the Nāgēśvarasvamin temple.

Pl. CXXIII is exactly similar to the previous one. The original of this sculpture is in the Śiva temple at Tiruvorriyūr and is executed very skilfully.

The photograph reproduced on Pl. CXXIV is that of a piece of sculpture belonging to one of the rock temples at Ellora. The central figure, Subrahmaṇya, has four arms and a single face. The front right hand which is broken seems to have held the śakti, whose head is visible near the figures of a Dēva and his Dēvi sculptured on the upper left corner. The back right hand rests upon the hip ;

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

the front left hand carries a kukkuṭa and the back left hand embraces the peacock which stands to the left of Subrahmaṇya. There are on either side a goat-headed attendant of Subrahmaṇya; one of these must be Dakṣha-Prajāpati, who is said to be one of the parivāra-dēvatās of Subrahmaṇya. The figure on the left has its left arm crossed against its chest and keeps its right one as if going to close his mouth,—attitudes which show a great deal of reverence. The figure on the left of Subrahmaṇya has its left hand resting upon its hip and keeps something in its right hand. On either side of the figure of Subrahmaṇya and soaring in the air are two Dēvas with their Dēvis praising him. The central figure of Subrahmaṇya has an yajñōpavīta, a udarabandha and a fine hāra; the ears are adorned with two different kinds of luṇḍalas and the head is surmounted with a kaṇḍa-makuṭa, round which there is a prabhā-maṇḍala.

Pl. CXXV is the photograph of Subrahmaṇya with his consorts and resembles the other two photographs described above. The only difference consists in that the figure of Subrahmaṇya in this instance bears the śakti and the kukkuṭa in its back right and left hands respectively, while, as in the other instances, the front right and left hands are kept in the abhaya and the varada poses respectively. The person of Subrahmanya is elaborately adorned with all sorts of ornaments.

Fig. 1, Pl. CXXVI is a piece of ivory carving executed in the School of Arts at Trivandram and closely resembles the previous sculpture. Fig. 2 on the same plate represents Subrahmanya as seated upon the peacock; the right leg is hanging while the left one is bent and rested upon the peacock. The front hands are in the abhaya and the varada poses, and the back hands keep in them the śakti and the vajra. Fig. 3 on the same plate portrays Subrahmanya as seated upon the peacock, embracing his consort with his right arm and keeping in his left hand a bow; whereas the Dēvi embraces her lord with her left arm and carries in her right hand an arrow. Fig. 2 may be taken as Śikhivāhana and fig. 3 as Sēnāpati.

Pl. CXXVII illustrates the description of Shanmukha. This beautifully carved figure belongs to the Śiva temple at Paṭṭiśvaram. It has twelve arms of which two are held in the abhaya and the varada poses and the remaining ones carry the śakti, ṭaṅka, chakra, khadga and musala (or pāśa?) and vajra, dhanus, bāṇa, khēṭaka and śaṅkha. The figure has six heads of which three are visible in the photograph. Behind the figure of Subrahmanya is his peacock.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Pl. CXXVIII is almost similar to the previous one; in addition to the weapons mentioned in the last plate, there is in this a śaktyāyudha made separately and kept leaning on the back arms. The padmāsana upon which this image stands is hexagonal, specially so made to agree with the six faced nature of the deity for whom it serves as a pedestal.

Pl. CXXVIIIa is a piece of sculpture which is to be found in the temple at Aihole and represents Tārakāri. In this Subrahmaṇya is seen riding a peacock and spiritedly attacking the fallen Tārakāsura with his śaktyāyudha which he wields with his right hand. The left hand carries the vajra. On either side of Subrahmaṇya are two Dēvas in the ālīḍhāsana posture, flying in the air and praising him. Above and on either side of the central figure are two persons carrying offerings and flower garlands.

Pl. CXXIX is a fine piece of sculpture to be seen in the front maṇḍapa of the temple of Śiva at Tirupparankunṇam near Madura. It represents the scene of the marriage of Subrahmaṇya with Dēvasēna. Subrahmaṇya is standing on the right with his right hand stretched out to receive the water which Indra is ready to pour from a water vessel, standing behind Dēvasēna on the left.

SUBRAHMANYA.

Subrahmanya has in the front left hand a lotus and in the back left one the śakti; it is not apparent from the photograph what other object is held in the back right hand.

Indra is seen keeping in the right hand the ṭaṅka and in the left the vajra and with his right hand he is pouring water into the hand of Subrahmanya.

Brahmā is seated in a countersunk surface below doing hōma (fire offerings) in connection with the marriage of Subrahmanya.

The modesty of the bride is very well portrayed in this piece of sculpture.

The Kumāra-tantra gives the description of the dvārapālakas of the shrine of Subrahmanya. They are called Sudēha and Sumukha; both of these are said to be brāhmaṇas. They should be represented with one face and two or four arms. If they possess two arms only, the right hand should be held in the abhaya pose and the left hand should keep a gadā. If they have four arms, the back hands should keep in them the vajra and the śakti and the front hands as in the case of the two-armed figure. One of these should be of red complexion and the other black; they must be adorned with all ornaments and should have side-tusks. Their head must have the karaṇḍa-makuṭas.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Sudēha should be to the right and Sumukha to the left of the entrance.

Another attendant of Subrahmaṇya is called Sumitra. His story is given thus in the Kumāra-tantra. There once lived a good brāhmana named Svarṇākṣha in Kāśī; he had a son named Sumitra who had been worshipping Skanda in due form during his three consecutive births. Subrahmaṇya was pleased with his devotion to himself (Subrahmaṇya) and gave him the name Sumitra (a good friend) and made him the head of the ganas and gave him a place near him. Then follows a description of the image of Sumitra, Sumitra should be sculptured according to the uttama-nava-tāla measure, with two eyes, two arms and a red complexion. He should have a fine looking face and should be youthful possessing side-tusks. The head should be covered with a karaṇḍa-makuta hiding his tuft of hair or a jaṭā-makuta. The right hand should carry the śakti and the left hand should be kept on the hip (hātyaavalambita). Or, the hands may be kept in the añjali pose on the chest. He may be sculptured either as seated or as standing on a padmāsana.

RANANDI.

NANDIKĒŚVARA OR ADHIKĀRANANDIN.

AT the entrance into many an important temple of Śiva in Southern India one meets with a pair of images, of which one is a male figure and the other a female one, the consort of the former. The male figure is shaped exactly like that of Śiva in the aspect of Chandraśekharamūrti. It is seen standing upon a padmāsana and carrying in its back hands the paraśu and the mṛiga ; but, unlike the figure of Chandraśekharamūrti, which keeps its front hands in the varada and the abhaya poses, that of Adhikāranandin has them folded on the chest in the añjali pose. The figure of Adhikāranandin is sometimes mistaken by the less informed persons for that of Śiva.

Three different accounts are found of the origin of Adhikāranandin. According to the Śiva-mahā-purāṇa, he was the son of the ṛishi Sālaṅkāyana ; the following account is given of him by this authority : Sālaṅkāyana, who was long without a son, was doing penance under a sāla tree in a place called Sālagrāma. Appreciating his austerities, Viṣṇu appeared before him and asked him to request for any boon he desired. The ṛishi prayed that he may be blessed with a son of great virtue. Immediately after this request was made, a person sprang from the right of Viṣṇu, who resembled Śiva in every way. He was given the name Nandikēśvara. The purāṇa adds that this was the forty-ninth birth of Nandikēśvara.

A second account of the birth of Nandikēśvara runs as follows. in the Trētā-yuga, a ṛishi named Nandi was performing a severe penance on the peak called Muñjavān on the Mandara mountain. Śiva pleased with the devotion of Nandi presented himself before the ṛishi. The latter requested Śiva to grant him the boons that he should have unshakeable faith in and love for Śiva, as also that he should be made the head of the gaṇas. Śiva granted him the boons with pleasure and disappeared. Indra and the other gods were overjoyed to see the bliss that befell the ṛishi Nandi and praised him for his good fortune.

The Liṅga-purāṇa has a third account of the origin of Nandikēśvara. A blind ṛishi named Silāda was practising penance with a desire to obtain an immortal son, not born of human beings.

NANDIKĒŚVARA OR ADHIKĀRANANDI.

Indra becoming pleased with the austerities of this ṛishi resolved to fulfil the ṛishi's desire and approached him and told him that no one but Śiva could grant him what he wanted and directed him to address his penances to that deity. He did as advised by Indra, and Śiva pleased with him, promised that he would himself be born to the ṛishi as his son ; thereby he intended to satisfy Brahmā also who was desirous of Śiva taking a human incarnation. After some time, Silāda was engaged in a sacrifice (yāga) ; a lad proceeded from the room in which the ṛishi Silāda was performing the yāga ; he looked precisely like Śiva, with a jaṭā-makuta on his head, three eyes and four arms. He was carrying in his hands the śūla, the ṭaṇṭika, the gadā and the vajra. Because Silāda became pleased with the fulfilment of his desire by the appearance of this, his son born not by human agency, Śiva gave the lad the name Nandi and disappeared.

Then Silāda and his son Nandi repaired to the former's āśrama. There the boy lost his super-human form and became quite like any ordinary mortal. Though feeling sorry for the change, Silāda performed on his son the usual ceremony such as upanayana, when the boy attained the seventh year of age ; he soon became well versed in the Vēdas. Some time after, two ṛishis named Mitra and Varuṇa came to the āśrama of the ṛishi Sīlāda as his guests; these gazed intently at Nandi and perceived through their mental vision that the life of the boy was to come to an end in one year more. They informed this sad news to the father of the boy. The ṛishi and his father Sālaṅkāyana sank in despair on hearing the prognostication of their guests, and swooned. But, Nandikēśvara, though internally perturbed, began to meditate upon Śiva so intently that the latter appeared to him and took hold of him in his arms and threw round his neck the flower garland which was hanging round his own neck. Forthwith the boy was changed into a being endowed with three eyes, ten arms and appearance which exactly resembled Śiva. The latter blessed this metamorphosed Nandi to be free from old age and death and also anointed him as the head of his gaṇas and married him to Suyāsa, the daughter of the Maruts.

The name Nandikēśvara, 'the tawny coloured dwarf' and a follower of Śiva occurs in the Rāmāyaṇa (V. 17, Sec. 16 of the Uttara-kāṇḍa). There he is stated to be another manifestation of Śiva (apara tanuh) and that when he was keeping guard over the Kailāsa, Rāvaṇa, the lord of Laṅkā and of the Rākshasas, came driving in his aerial car and wanted to cross the abode of Śiva. But he was promptly stopped by Nandikēśvara. Upon this Rāvaṇa made contemptuous remarks concerning the monkey-face of Nandikēśvara. Incensed at the insult offered to him, he cursed Rāvaṇa that beings possessing the same shape as himself and of similar energy (that is, monkeys) would destroy the race of Rāvaṇa.

Nandikēśvara is mentioned also in the Bhāgavatapurāṇa. During the yāga that Dakṣa-prajāpati was performing, he spoke tauntingly of Śiva. Nandi grew angry at the insult offered to his lord Śiva and pronounced maledictions against Dakṣa and the other revilers of Śiva.

The Vishṇudharmōttara gives the following description of Nandikēśvara. He should have three eyes and four arms and a red complexion. His garments should be made of tiger's skin; in one of his hands there should be the triśūla and in another the bhindī; a third hand should be held over his head and the fourth held as though he is commanding a host of people. His gaze should suggest that he is seeing objects at a great distance and regulating the large crowd of devotees resorting to offer worship to Śiva.

Nandikēśvara is more often represented as a bull than as a bull-faced human being or as a duplicate of Śiva. The former is kept lying in front of the central shrine of all Śiva temples.

An illustration of Adhikāra-Nandin is given on Pl. CXXXI. The original of the photograph therein reproduced is in the temple of Śiva at Valuvūr. It is sculptured precisely like Śiva in the aspect of Chandraśekharamūrti, carrying the paraśu and the mṛga in the back right and left hands respectively, and standing upon a padmāsana; but unlike Chandraśekharamūrti who keeps the front right and left hands in the abhaya and the varada poses, Nandikēśvara has them folded on the chest in the añjali pose. The body has three slight bends in it (tribhanga). On his head are the jaṭā-makuṭa and the Gaṅgā and the crescent moon.

Pl. CXXXII is the photograph of the bronze Nandi in the Śiva temple at Pañchanadikkuḷam; it is an ordinary bull couchant and is placed in the mahāmaṇḍapa of the Śiva temples generally.

CHANDESVARA.

CHAṆḌĒŚVARA.

THE story of Chaṇḍēśvara, how he worshipped Śiva and attained to the position of the leader of the bhūtagaṇas of Śiva, has been given already under Chaṇḍēśānugrahamūrti. The image of Chaṇḍēśvara is essential in a Śiva temple and should be set up in the north-east corner with reference to the central shrine of the temple.

The image of Chaṇḍēśvara may be set up in a shrine unattached to any temple, or as one of the parivārā-dēvatas or attendant deities in a Śiva temple. In the first instance, the shrine of Chaṇḍēśvara is said to be svatantra and in the second paratantra. The svatantra temple of Chaṇḍēśvara may be situated in any of the eight directions (north, north-east, etc.) or in the centre of towns and villages. The temple of Chaṇḍēśvara may range in size from a mere shrine of one cubit cube to a magnificent temple with a base of thirty cubits square, surmounted by a vimāna of one to seven talas or storeys in height, ornamented with the figures of Chaṇḍeśvara or any other deity on the corners of each tala (storey); or, there might be in these corners figures of Nandi, the bull couchant. In the case of the temple of svatantra Chaṇḍeśvara, it is required to face any one of the directions except the north; this temple should have prākāras, maṇḍapas, etc., in proportion to the dimensions of the central shrine.

Surrounding the central shrine there should be eight parivara-mūrtis, named Rudrabhakta, Rudra-Chaṇḍa, Chaṇḍama, Mahābala, Virya, Ṭaṅkapāni, Īśasēvaka and Rudrakōpaja. They should all be of white complexion, big-bodied and with the pair of front hands held in the añjali pose and the back pair carrying in them ṭaṅkas. They may be represented either as standing or seated in the vīrāsana attitude and draped in elephant skins, they should have terrific countenances. Instead of Rudrabhakta and others, Indra and the other Dikpālakas may be made the parivāras of the temple of Chaṇḍeśvara. They may be represented as actual anthropomorphic figures or with simple pīṭhas (as in the case of the Sapta-Mātrikās, see Vol. I, Pl. CXX). In front of the temple of Chaṇḍeśvara there should be, as in Śiva's temples, a Nandi or couchant bull, and at the main entrance of the temple there should be two gate-keepers named Chanḍānuga and Chanḍabhṛitya. These two should be sculptured with two arms and carrying clubs in their hands, sometimes they may be dispensed with also.

The figure of Chanḍēśvara should be fashioned according to the madhyama or adhama-daśa-tāla vidh as is given in Pratimālakṣhaṇa or instructions given for the making of images; different descriptions are found in the āgamas for making the image of Chanḍēśvara. In the first instance, we see it stated that it might be sculptured as seated upon a padmāsana; its look should be terrific, as if fire would burst out of its face; the colour of Chanḍēśvara should be jet black and there must be a śaṛṇṇāṅghrī on its body. The head should be adorned with a jaṭā-makūṭa, in which there should be the crescent of the moon, as in the case of Śiva. Chanḍēśvara, according to this description, should have four faces, four arms and twelve eyes. In the right hands there should be the aṣṭamālā and the triśūla and in the left hands the ṭaṇḍala and the kaṇḍalu.

A second description of the image of Chanḍēśvara is as follows. The complexion of this deity should be conch-white; there should be three eyes and four arms and in the jaṭā-makūṭa the crescent moon. The figure of the deity should be seated in the vīrāsana posture and should carry in its back hands the dhanus called the Pināka and the bāṇa called the Amōgha, while the front hands should be kept in the varada and abhaya poses.

According to the third description, Chandēśvara may be represented as either standing or sitting, with only a pair of arms but with three eyes. The colour of the body is here also required to be inky-black. As in the other cases there should be the jaṭā-makuta on the head. If the figure is made a seated one, the right leg should be hanging below the seat and the left leg should be bent and rested upon the seat. The left hand may either be placed on the left thigh or held in the varada pose. In the right hand there may be a ṭaṅka; or both hands may carry ṭaṅkas, or both hands may be folded on the chest in the añjali pose. Or, the figure may be sculptured as seated in the utkuṭikāsana posture with the head slightly bowed down as in deep sorrow, but with a face full of peace.

In the fourth mode of representing Chandēśvara, he must be sculptured as having four arms three of which should be carrying the ṭaṅka, the pāśa and the śūla and the remaining one held in the abhaya pose.

CHAṆḌĒŚVARA.

"In the descriptions found in the works of the Siṃhaḷadeśa (Ceylon) * it is stated", so says the Kāṃikāgama, "that Chaṇḍēśvara should be represented in the Kṛitayuga with eight arms, in the Trētāyuga with six, in the Dvāparayuga with four and in the Kaliyuga with two only. But", the same authority adds, "no such thing is mentioned in the works of the other countries".

Again, Chaṇḍēśvara may be shown singly or with his consort Dharmanīti. If his Dēvi is also sculptured, she should be adorned with all ornaments and should carry a nīlōtpala in her hands. Her colour is also to be black.

The Kāraṇāgama states that Prachanḍachanḍa, Vikrāntachanḍa, Vibhuchanḍa, Virachanḍa and another whose name is not given came from the Pañchabrahmās. The stewardship of the house of Śiva was bestowed in the Kṛitayuga upon Prachanḍachanḍa, in the Trētāyuga upon Vikrāntachanḍa, in

* This is clear evidence that there existed in Ceylon the worship not only of Buddha but of the various deities of the Hindu cults and that there existed text-books in that country also containing descriptions of images, which sometimes differed from the readings of those on the continent of India. Evidently some of those Buddha āgamas quoted by Dr. Ananda-kumārasami in his "Sinhalese Art" belong to the category of works referred to in the Kāṃikāgama.

the Dvāparayuga upon Vibbuchaṇḍa and in the Kaliyuga upon Virachaṇḍa.

In the case of paratantra Chaṇḍēśvara his shrine should be facing the south and, as has been already mentioned, be situated on the north-east corner of the first prākāra of the Śiva temple. According to the Kāraṇāgama the paratantra Chaṇḍēśvara may have three eyes and four arms or only two eyes and two arms, be terrific in appearance, and have a jaṭā-makuṭa on the head. Of the four hands two are to be kept in the abhaya and varada poses and the remaining two should carry the pāśa and the paraśu. If however there are only two hands, one of them should be in the varada pose and the other should carry a taṅka. There should be a white yajñōparīṭa on the body which should be adorned with all ornaments also. The figure of Chaṇḍēśvara may be either standing or sitting.

Two illustrations are given on Pl. CXXXIII. The very well-executed original stone sculpture is placed in a very dark corner of the maṇḍapa in front of the central shrine of the Śiva temple at Tiruvorriyūr. It is seated in the vīrāsana posture and it carries a paraśu in its right hand, the left one resting upon the left lap. There is a figure of Chaṇḍēśvara carved on the north of the central shrine of the Śaiva cave called Dhumar Lena in Ellora ; it has been mistaken by Dr. Burgess for “ Śiva as a yōgi or ascetic, with a club in his left hand, and seated on a lotus. ”

The second illustration is of the standing Chaṇḍēśvara: it belongs to the temple at Marudāntanallūr. The figure has only two arms and the hands are held in the añjali pose. A ṭaṅka rests on the left arm.

BHAKTAS.

BHAKTAS.

BHAKTAS or devotees whose images are also enjoined to be set up for worship in temples may belong to the Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vaiśya or the Śūdra caste; or of mixed castes; males or females; they may be āchāryas or crowned monarchs; living or dead. All that is wanted to apotheosise them is that they should be bhaktas or acknowledged devotees. Such devotees should be worshipped in images. These images may be set up either in separate temples (svayam-pradhāna) or in the temples of some deity whose devotee the bhakta happens to be, as a dependent on that deity (an aṅga). As instances of the former may be pointed out the temple of Kaṇṇappa Nāyānar, the hunter saint, on the hill at Kālahasti; and of Kulaśēkhara Ālvār at Mannārkōyil near Ambāsamudram. The attendant or aṅga class of images are found in all important temples of S. India. The well-known sixty-three (Aruvattu-mūvar) Śaiva saints and the twelve Ālvārs or Vaishṇava saints of Drāviḍa are seen invariably in Śaiva and Vaishṇava temples in S. India.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

A svayam-pradhāna or independent temple of a bhakta may be constructed on the top of a hill, on the bank of a river, in vanas (gardens) and in grāmas (towns). The aṅga or dependent class of bhaktas are required by the āgamas to be set up near the place where flower-garlands for the use of the temple are made. The first class of images may have parivāras or attendants, while the latter should not possess any for the obvious reason, namely, that they are themselves depending upon others.

Bhaktas may be represented by anthropomorphic figures, or, in the case of Śaiva bhaktas, as Śivahīnas, or occasionally also in the form of Śiva himself. But in the case of Vaiṣṇava bhaktas they are generally represented as actual human beings just as they appeared when they were living. The images may be made of stone, clay, metal, wood or gems. They may be carved in half relief or in the round (aṇḍha-chitra or chitrābhāsa). They should be sculptured according to the aṣṭa-tala measure, either as standing or as seated on a padmāsana or a śimhāsana. They may be sculptured with or without a tuft of hair on their head; if they are shown with a tuft it should be neatly done up in a knot on the top of the head;

if they are not to possess a tuft of hair, their head should be shown as clean shaven. If the devotee is a crowned monarch or a ruling chief he should be sculptured with a kiriṭa or karaṇḍa-makūṭa on his head. The bhaktas may be made to carry in their hands any object which is generally associated with them or they may have their hands held in the añjali pose, or the attitude of worship. They may be sculptured as singing, dancing or doing pūjā. They should be adorned with all ornaments and if the bhakta is a female, she should be decked with such ornaments as are appropriate to her sex.

BHAKTAS.

Besides the Śaiva saints above enumerated, there are counted many more at the present time ; that is, after that list of sixty-three was drawn up by Sundaramūrti-Nāyanār, many others of saintly nature came into being and though they could not be placed in the older list, are still held in as much esteem as the older saints. Such are, for instance, Māṇikkavāchakar, Karuvūrttēvar, Kaṇḍāradittar, Tīrumāligaittēvar, Śēndanār, Chēdiyarāyar, Puru-shōttamanambi, Tīruvāliyamudanār, Pūnduruttī-kāḍanambi, Meykaṇḍadēvar and others. Images are set up for these persons also, along with the sixty-three; that is why we see in many Śiva temples not sixty-three, but about seventy-three images of bhaktas. The number of bhaktas cannot be limited, since any number of these might be added at any time.

Similarly, in Vaiṣṇava temples of S. India, which are almost always under the management of the Śrīvaiṣṇavas, are seen often more than twelve figures of saints. The additional ones are of subsequent āchāryas, like Rāmānuja, Maṇavāḷa-māmunigaḷ, Vēṅkatanātha Dēśika, etc.

It might be observed that Kuḷasēkharālvār, a crowned monarch, has a maḥa on his head, according to the rules laid down above (see Pl. CXXXVI). We see also that Kaṇṇappa-nāyanār has his hair tied up in a fine knot on the crown of the head (see Pl. CXXXIV), and certain brāhmaṇa saints, with a small tuft of hair on the crown, as in the case of Viṣṇuchitta (Periyālvār), Toṇḍara-ḍippoḍi and Madurakavi, in our illustrations (Pl. CXXXVI).

Again, certain characteristic features mark particular saints, for instance, Apparsvānigal is at once recognised by a staff, with a triangular metallic piece, at its end, intended for removing grass grown in temples; for, he had undertaken to do that service in all temples he visited (see Pl. CXXXVII, fig. 3). Tirujñānasambandha among the Śaiva (See fig., Pl. CXXXVII) and Tiruppāñālvār among the Vaishṇava saints (Pl. CXXXVI) would easily be recognised by the cymbals they have in their hands. Tirumaṅgai, by the sword and shield; and Māpikkavāchakar, by the book in his hands, (fig. 2, Pl. CXXXVII and Pl. CXXXVIII).

For the history of these Śaiva and Vaishṇava saints, the readers are referred to the Periyapurāṇam in Tamil,—for, this has not as yet been rendered in English by any one,—and Mr. A. Gōvindhāchārya's 'Lives of Drāviḍa Saints' in English, respectively.

We learn from the writings of the Śri-vaishṇavas that in the days of Rāmānuja and later, people were owning slaves and that the latter had their names tattooed on their chests in token of their condition. Some sold themselves to others as slaves in times of famine. When once they became slaves, they were bound to serve their masters with the utmost fidelity; in short, they had to become practically members of the family of their masters and personally interest themselves in the welfare of their families; in other words the slaves became the bhaktas of their masters. As a concrete instance of this custom might be pointed out the life-size images of the Vijayanagara kings Kṛishṇadēvarāya and Veṅkaṭapatidēvarāya and the queens of the former, Chinnādēvī and Tirumaladēvī, which are set up in the temple of Veṅkaṭēśa on the Tirumalai hill at Tirupati. These were apparently set up in their life-time as the paleography of the writing on their chests indicates. These devotees of Veṅkaṭēśa inscribed themselves as the slaves of the Lord of Tirumala and thereby bound themselves to do everything for the welfare of the temple and in testimony whereof they seem to have caused their images being set up in the temple with their names engraved on their chests, so that the images might be ever worshipping their own favourite god Veṅkaṭēśa (see Viśvakarma).

ARYA OR HARIHARAPUTRA.

ĀRYA OR HARIHARAPUTRA.

THE deity Ārya, Śāsta or Hariharaputra, so well known to the Drāviḍas is not familiar to the inhabitants of Northern India; even in the Drāviḍa country he is the favourite only of the Malayālam people. The country of the latter possesses as large a number of temples of Śāsta as the Tamil country has of Subrahmaṇya and it is an invariable rule in the Malayālam country that in every temple, be it of Śiva or of Viṣṇu, there must be in its south-west corner a shrine for Śāsta. He is considered by them as the guardian of the land and as such eight mountain tops along the Western Ghats are surmounted by eight temples in which are set up eight images of Śāsta to protect the country on the west of the mountain ranges, inhabited by the Malayālis, from all external evils and misfortunes. In this country he is better known as Śāsta than as Hariharaputra or Ārya. In the Tamil country he is known by the name Hariharaputra or more frequently Ayyanār (a modification of Ārya). That Śāsta should have been a very common name and the deity was perhaps once better known by that name in the Tamil country is deducible from the fact that in all examples in Grammars of declension, inflexion, etc., the subject of a sentence is Śāttan (Śāsta), just as the Sanskrit Grammarians usually employ the name of Dēvadatta. The name Śāsta or its corruption is not borne by men in the Tamil country, but one can meet with persons of that name by scores in the Malayālam country.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY

This deity which is very peculiar to the Drāviḍa country does not appear to have been known to the region north of the Gōḍāvari. In no early Sanskrit work is the deity mentioned. Even the dictionaries do not record this name and give its origin. In the Vishṇupurāṇa we hear that, Vishṇu, seeing that there ensued a quarrel between the Dēvas and Asuras over the distribution of the amṛita (ambrosia) obtained by churning the ocean of milk, assumed the form of a charming damsel, distributed the precious article among the Dēvas, the Asuras being all the while dazed by the enchanting beauty of the maiden and oblivious of the cause of their quarrel. It is in the Śrī Bhāgavata that we learn, for the first time that Hara fell in love with Vishṇu in his form of Mōhinī. From the union between Hara and Hari, Ārya, Śāsta or Hariharaputra is said to have been born. The Suprabhēdāgama very distinctly mentions that Śāsta was born of Mōhini, the form assumed by Viṣṇu for the purpose of distributing the amṛita among the gods when it was churned from the milk-ocean, by the union with her of Hara. That this is a deity peculiarly Dravidian and has been taken into the fold of the Āryan pantheon at a later period goes without contradiction. At present Hariharaputra is treated in the Tamil country as a village deity and is mostly worshipped by the lower classes and the pūja in the temple of Hariharaputra or Ayyanār (or Ayyanārappan) is performed by a Śūdra. The Pādmāsāṃhitā states that the pūja in the temple of Ārya should be performed by a Pāraśava; we know from other sources that a Pāraśava is an anulōma born of a Brāhmaṇa father and a Śūdra mother. But somehow Ayyanār, like the more tāmasic forms of Dēvi such as Kālī, which are worshipped by the lower classes in the Tamil country, is made pūja to by the Brāhmaṇas in Malabar.

ĀRYA OR HARIHARAPUTRA.

This deity is called Śāsta because he is able to control and rule over the whole world; etymologically therefore, the word means a ruler of a country, and is sometimes applied to teachers and fathers. The Amarakōṣa applies the name to Buddha also. The Tamil Nighaṇṭus call him by the additional names Śātavāhana, the rider of the white elephant, Kāri, the wielder of the weapon known as śeṇḍu, the consort of Pūraṇa and Pushkalā, the protector of Dharma and Yōgi; they also state that the vehicle of Śāsta is the elephant and the crest of his banner a cock. The names, rider of the white elephant, Yōgi, the protector of Dharma coupled with the significance of Buddha applied to Śāsta in the Amarakōṣa incline one to conclude that Buddha as conceived and worshipped in the Tamil country was ultimately included in the Hindu Pantheon and a Purāṇic story invented for his origin at a later period of the history of Hindu Iconology. The name Śātavāhana is also very noteworthy as it has been assumed by a dynasty of powerful kings of the earlier centuries of the Christian era.

The descriptions of the image of Śāsta or Ārya are found given in the Amśumadbhēdagama, the Suprabhēdagama and the Kāraṇāgama. The figure of Śāsta should have four arms and three eyes, and a peaceful countenance; its colour should be golden yellow and it should be draped in silk garments. It must be seated upon a padmāsana. The front right and left hands should be held in the abhaya and varada poses respectively and the back right and left hands should carry a khaḍga and a khēṭaka respectively. This is the description given in the Aṃśumadbhēdāgama. The Suprabhēdāgama has a very different description altogether ; it states that the figure of Śāsta should have only two arms and two eyes and a dark complexion. It should be adorned with all ornaments and a white yajñōpavīta. The arms and legs should be kept folded : in the right hand there should be a crooked stick (known in Tamil as the śeṇḍu) and in the left fruits and tender leaves of plants (pallava). The body of this deity should be like that of a bhūta, with a big belly. The hair on his head should be jet black in colour. Śāsta should be represented as playing with dogs, sheep and fowls. He has two wives named Madanā and Varṇanī ; the figures of these should be sculptured one on either side of that of Śāsta, with large breasts and adorned with all ornaments. To the left of Śāsta there should be the figure of Damanaka—who he is, is not mentioned—of ill-looking features.

The Kāraṇāgama agrees with the Aṃśumadbhēdāgama in taking Śāsta as the son of Mōhinī by Hara, but states, with Suprabhēdāgama, that Śāsta should have only two arms and two eyes, and a dark complexion. Śāsta should be seated on a pīṭha, with his left leg hanging down the seat and the right one folded and rested upon the seat vertically. On the knee of this latter leg should rest the elbow of the stretched left arm. In the right hand there should be a vajradanḍa, which is a crooked stick (note the vajra a characteristic weapon of the Bauddha Bōdhisatva). The figure of Śāsta should be of youthful and peaceful appearance. The hair of his head should be like blue-black ink and be spread out. His vehicle is the elephant as also is the crest on his banner. He should have by his side a blitheful damsel. At the end of the description, it is mentioned that the colour of Śāsta might be blue, white or dark, his vehicle the bull, that he might have four arms and that the crest on his banner a cock.

The same authority states that if Ārya is to be represented as a Yogi he should be sculptured as seated in yōgāsana ; if as a student of the Vēdas, he should wear a pavitra (a ring made of kuśa grass) on his fingers, and wear his upper cloth on his shoulder in the upavīta fashion and be seated in the vīrāsana posture. If Śāsta is to be shown as seated in the sukhāsana fashion, the posture should be what is known as sukhāsana, the right foot of the bent right leg resting upon the thigh of the left leg which should be hanging. The gaze of Sukhāsana-Ārya should be fixed on his right foot.

ĀRYA OR HARIHARAPUTRA.

Four photographs are given in illustration of the images of Śāsta. Fig. 2, Pl. CXXXIX is the photograph of an image to be found in the Śiva temple at Tirupparaīyāru in N. Travancore. This image is seated with its right leg bent and rested in a vertical position and the left leg bent and rested in a horizontal position on the seat. The right hand of the figure is in the varada pose and rests upon the right thigh; the left arm which is slightly bent is made to rest upon the left thigh. The image is adorned with all kinds of ornaments. This is the Virāsana-Ārya. The second photograph fig. 2, Pl. CXL is of a bronze image belonging to the temple at Tiruppālatturai in the Tanjore district. This image is also seated in the vīrāsana posture, with his left arm, which is stretched out, resting upon the knee of the left leg which is bent and kept resting vertically on the seat. The right leg is hanging down the seat which is a padmāsana. The right hand is held in the kaṭaka pose, to receive in it a śeṇḍu stick. The hair on the head of this image is spread out fan-wise in a circle. The third photograph fig. 1, Pl. CXL, is of another bronze image to be found in the temple at Valuvūr also in the Tanjore district. It represents Śāsta as seated upon an elephant which has on each side a double tusk unlike the mundane elephant. The figure of Śāsta in this instance is sculptured exactly like the image of Tiruppālaturai. The fourth illustration fig. 1, Pl. CXXXIX, the original of which is enshrined in the temple at Śāstānkōṭṭai in Travancore is of a standing figure of Śāsta. Here, he is represented with a pair of arms, which carry the dhanus and bāṇa respectively and as standing erect. On the two upright posts of the highly ornamented prabhāvaḷi are sculptured the two dēvīs of Śāsta, the right one of them carrying, as usual in the case of an image attended by two dēvīs, a padma and the left one a nīlōtpala flower.

KSHETRAPALA.

KSHĒTRAPĀLA.

FOR the protection of the towns and villages from evil deities and from bad men, the shrine of the Kshētrapāla should be in the north-east corner of the town or village, the image of the Kshētrapāla being set up and pūjā offered to it systematically. It is best (uttama) for the shrine to face the west; it may face the south, but it is not very good to do so (madhyama) and to make it face the east is the worst (adhama).

The image of the Kshētrapāla should be always a nude standing one with three eyes; it may possess two, four, six or eight arms. The sātvika image has either two or four arms; the rājasa six arms and the tāmasa eight. In the sātvika form alone, the image, though it might possess side tusks should be of pacific look, whereas, in the other cases, it should be of terrific look only. Similarly, the colour of the body differs in different aspects of the Kshētrapāla; it is white if the image is a sātvika one; it is red if it is rājasa and black if it is tāmasa.

In the case of the sātvika-mūrti, if the image of Kshētrapāla has only two arms, there should be the triśūla in its right hand and a kapāla in its left. On the other hand, if there are four arms, there must be the khaḍga in the back right hand, and the ghaṇṭa in the back left hand, or śūla and kapāla or śūla and ghaṇṭa respectively. The two front hands should be held in the varada and abhaya poses.

In the case of the rājasamūrti the image of Kshētrapāla should carry in its three right hands the triśūla, the khaḍga and the ghaṇṭa and in its three left hands the khēṭaka, the kapāla and the nāga-pāśa. And, in the case of the tāmasamūrti, there should be, in addition to the articles mentioned above, the dhanus in the additional fourth right hand and the bāṇa in the additional fourth left hand.

All the three aspects of the Kshētrapāla should have the hair on the head standing erect all round the head and of blazing red colour, the figure must be standing erect (samabhaṅga) on a padmapīṭha and be adorned with different kinds of snake ornaments. As has been observed above, nudity is the most characteristic feature in all these images. Such is the description contained in the Aṁsumadbhēdā-gama.

The Suprabhēdāgama and the Kāraṇāgama have each some slight variations in their description of Kshētrapāla. The former authority mentions that the image of Kshētrapāla should be adorned with a nāga-yajñōpavīta on its body and a garland of skulls on the head ; that the eyes should be circular in shape and that if the image has four arms, there should be the triśūla and the khaḍga in the right hands and the kapāla and the khēṭaka in the left hands ; if there are six arms, in the additional right hand there should be a nāgapāśa and in the additional left hand the tōmara (a weapon) ; and if there are eight arms, together with the articles mentioned above, the additional right hand should carry a ḍamaru and the additional left one the khaṭvāṅga.

The Kāraṇāgama agrees with the above descriptions in all details except in regard to the articles held by the image which has eight arms ; in this case, according to this authority, there should be in seven out of the eight hands the kapāla, the śūla, the ghaṇṭā, the pāśa, agni, the ṭaṅka and the khaṭvāṅga and the remaining hand should be held in the abhaya pose.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Aghōraśivāchārya in his Vighnēśvara-pratish-ṭhāvidhi, gives a dhyāna-ślōka in which the dog is said to be the vehicle of Kshētrapāla.<sup>(1)</sup> The Tamil Nighantus agree with this authority in this respect, the Piṅgala-nighaṇṭu distinctly mentions that Kañchuka, Kāri, Mukta, Nirvāṇi, Siddha, Kapāli, Vaṭuka and Bhairava are the other names of Kshētrapāla. From this it will be evident that the so-called Kshētrapāla is no other than Bhairava described elsewhere and therefore need not have been treated here in a separate chapter, but since the āgamas deal with this aspect of Śiva, which is said to be his one-ten-thousandth part, under a separate head and in a separate chapter, the arrangement of the āgamas is here followed strictly (See figs. 1 and 2, Pl. CXLI).

BRAHMA.

BRAHMĀ.

THE history of Brahmā has incidentally been given here and there in the first volume of this work as also in a previous portion of the present one. It has already been stated that Brahmā was born in a golden egg and was therefore known as Hiranyagarbha, that he sprang from the waters and the ether, that he took the form of a boar and lifted up the earth from the ocean, that he took the avaṭār of a fish, that he was born from the lotus that issued from the navel of Viṣṇu, that he was the father of Dakṣha and other Prajāpatis (patriarchs), that he disputed the superiority of Viṣṇu over himself and that when, in connection with the dispute, Śiva appeared between them in the form of a pillar of fire, he (Brahmā) went up to search for its upper end and failed to do so; that he was born to the ṛishi Atri and his wife Anasūya as one of the aspects of Dattātrēya; that he served as a charioteer of Śiva when the latter attacked the Tripurāsuras, and that he acted as purōhita (officiating priest) in the marriage of Śiva and also of Subrahmanya; and many other things have also been mentioned about him.

It is well-known that Brahmā (who is to be carefully distinguished from Brahma in the neuter gender) is a member of the later Hindu Trinity; but he is not held now in such great importance as the other two members of the Trinity. No temples are dedicated for his exclusive worship, nor is there any sect or class owing special and exclusive allegiance to him, in other words, there is no Brahmā cult as we have the Vaishṇava and the Śaiva cults with a large number of adherents, ever quarrelling over the superiority of their own particular sect or god. Hence it is believed by some people that Brahmā is offered no pūjā on earth now, and is not worshipped at all. This opinion is far from the truth. As has been elsewhere remarked, there exists (and should exist), no temple which has not got all the three members of the Trinity, be it a Śiva's temple or Viṣṇu's. The niche on the northern wall of the central shrine of the Viṣṇu's or Śiva's temple should contain an image of Brahmā and must receive daily pūjā. He is one of the most important of the parivāra-dēvatās of the first prākāra of a Viṣṇu or Śiva temple. Nor are instances of a separate temple dedicated exclusively to Brahmā wanting in India, though they are very few and far between. Even such a very late production on images and temples like the Rūpamaṇḍana has got a complete description of a temple of Brahmā and mentions its parivāra-dēvatas, the dvārapālakas etc., facts which clearly indicate that the building of separate temples for Brahmā had not yet become unknown. Elaborate descriptions of the images of Brahmā are found in almost all works of authority.

The Rūpamaṇḍana says that the four peaceful looking faces of Brahmā are symbolic of the four Vēdas, the four Yugas, and the four Varṇas. Formerly Brahmā had five heads, but one of them was cut off by Śiva. The four heads should be respectively facing the four quarters. Brahmā should have four arms; he may be standing, seated on either a padmāsanā or a haṁsa (swan). The Śilparatna mentions another seat called the lambakūrchāsana for Brahmā; the phrase literally means a seat composed of long grass; it perhaps is meant to indicate a seat or mat made of grass. If he is to be represented as seated, he should be shown in the yōgāsana posture; if standing, then on a padma-pīṭha. The complexion of Brahmā should be chrome-yellow and the colour of his eyes a mixture of red and yellow (orange). On his head should be a jaṭā-makuta and he should be adorned with all ornaments, there should be on his chest a white yajñōpavīta. His body should be covered with a coat of white sandal paste and he should be wearing a garland of white flowers. A kaṭisūtra (or waist-band) should go round the loins. The undergarments should consist of white clothes and the upper portion of the body should be covered with a deer's skin worn in the upavīta fashion. There should be golden or ruby kuṇḍalas in the ears. The Suprabhēdāgama states that the colour of jaṭās on his head should be of red colour and the Śilparatna and the Vishṇupurāṇa would have the colour of Brahmin white and crimson respectively. The hands of Brahmin may carry the following articles or may be held in the following poses :—

(1) There may be the akṣhamālā and the kūrcha (a handful of kuśa grass) in the right hands and kuśa and kamaṇḍalu in the left hands ; or

(2) the sruk and the sruva in the right hands and the āyā-sthālū (ghee-pot) and kuśa grass in the left ones, or

(3) the front two hands may be held in the abhaya and varada poses the back hands carrying the akṣhamālā and the kamaṇḍalu (See Pl. CXLII); or

(4) the front right hand may be placed with its palm facing below on the palm of the front left hand which is facing above and both resting upon the crossed legs, and the back hands carrying, as in the former case, an akṣhamālā and a kamaṇḍalu; or

(5) the front right hand may be in the varaḍa pose, the back right hand carrying a sruva and the back left hand a sruk and the front left hand a kamaṇḍalu (See fig. 2, Pl. CXLIII); or

(6) the front right hand should keep an akṣhmālā, the back right hand a sruk, the back left hand a pustaka (book) and the front left hand a kamaṇḍalu.

The Viṣṇupurāṇa requires that Brahmā's eyes should be closed as in the attitude of dhyāna or meditation and the Rūpamaṇḍana prescribes a beard for him. The former authority also adds that he should be seated in a chariot drawn by seven swans. To the right and left of Brahmā should be his consorts Sarasvatī and Sāvitrī respectively. Their persons should be adorned with all ornaments and they must be naturally also very beautiful; or, it is enough to represent

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY

Sāvitṛī alone with Brahmā seated on his left side or on his left lap. According to the Śilparatna there ought to be four Vēdas and the ājya-sthāli placed in front of Brahmā and he should be surrounded on all sides by ṛishis.

The Hūpamaṇḍana gives the following description of Sāvitṛī, she should have four faces and four arms; in the hands she should carry an akshamālā, a book, a padma and a kamaṇḍalu. She is a deity who is meant to bestow all good to the Śrōtriya Brāhmaṇas.

In a temple exclusively dedicated to Brahmā, there should be set up in the central shrine that aspect of his, named Viśvakarma. In this form Brahmā has, as usual, four heads and four arms; in his hands there should be the akshamālā, a book, a bundle of kuśa grass (?) and a kamaṇḍalu; and he should be seated upon a swan (See Pl. CXLIV). The following parivāra-dēvatas are required to be set up in the eight quarters beginning from the east and going round clockwise, namely, Ādiśēsha, Gaṇēśa, the Mātṛikās, Indra, Jalaśāyi, Pārvatī and Rudra, the Navagrahas and Lakshmi respectively. Below is given a table mentioning the names of the Dvārapālakas of the temple of Brahmā and the articles held by them in their hands.—

All these eight Dvārapālakas should be represented as of terrific nature and with beards. There should be makuṭas on their heads. A large number of ṛishis also with moustaches and jaṭas, carrying in their hands the akshamālā and the kamaṇḍalu, should be seated in the temple of Brahmā and be meditating upon him.

Nine photographs are given in illustration of the images of Brahmā ; the originals belong to the various parts of India and are of different varieties; they exhibit the general natural characteristics of the country to which each belongs. Of these, the picture on Pl. CXLIV, is that of Brahmā found in the Śiva temple at Aihoḷe in the Bijāpūr district of the Bombay Presidency. Brahmā is here seated upon a padmāsana with his left leg hanging and the right one kept bent and supported on the seat. He has in his front right hand an akṣhamālā, in the back right hand a pāśa (?), in the back left hand a kamaṇḍalu and the front left hand is kept in the varada pose. He wears jaṭāmakutaś on his heads and has an yajñōpavīta, kaṭisūtra and other ornaments. To the right and left are two women (whose arms alone are visible in the photograph) carrying flower garlands held over the head of Brahmā; probably they represent the goddesses Sarasvatī and Sāvitrī. At the base of the seat and on the left is seated a ṛṣi with his hands held in the añjali pose (these alone are visible in the picture) and correspondingly on the right is a hamsa (whose tail, one wing and one leg alone are visible in the photograph).

The second photograph, (Pl. CXLV), is that of a sculpture to be found in Sopāra in the Tāṇa district of the same Presidency. It is a standing figure of Brahmā. As in other pieces of sculpture, this one also has a pointed beard for the middle face only. On the head are jaṭāmakutaś and a yajñōpavīta graces his body, there are also the kaṭisūtra and other ornaments. In the right front hand of the image is held apparently a lotus; in the back right hand, is the sruka, in the back left hand a kūrcha and in the front left hand a kamaṇḍalu. On either side of the figure of Brahmā stands a female figure, apparently carrying in their hands bundles of kuśa grass. To the left of Brahmā is his vehicle, the swan, and to the right a brahmachārin boy. Here, the figure of Brahmā has a big belly, which is bound up, with a udara-bandha. Fig. 2, Pl. CXLIII is exactly similar to the Sopāra sculpture, but belongs to the Chālukya-Hoysala style.

The illustration, fig. 1, (Pl. CXLVII), comes from the Nāgēśvarasvāmī temple at Kumbhakōṇam. It is almost like the Sopāra figure; the points of difference being that the central face has not got a beard; the front right hand is in the abhaya pose and the back right carries a kshamālā; the back left hand has a kamaṇḍalu and the front left hand is resting upon the thigh (katyavalambita hāsta). The workmanship is excellent and the effect is very pleasing.

The next plate, (Pl. CXLVIII) contains the photographs of the front, back and the side views of a very beautiful figure of Brahmā; they were supplied to me by the Superintendent of Archæology of the Western Circle. This figure of Brahmā is peculiar in that it has only two arms instead of four as required by the āgamas: the right one of these is held bent with the palm turned inwards. What this hand-pose indicates is not plain. The other arm is also bent and is carrying a kamaṇḍalu, whose neck alone now remains in the sculpture. On the heads are jaṭāmaḥaṭas and the underwear is a fine cloth whose folds and creases are beautifully arranged by the artist. On the left shoulder is thrown in an artistic manner a deer-skin, the head and forelegs of the deer being well visible in the side view. On the whole this piece of old sculpture is an excellent specimen of the art of India.

The next illustration (Pl. CXLIV) is also from Aihole. Brahmā is seated in the centre on a swan. He has in his hands an akṣhamālā, a lotus (?), the kūrcha and a kamaṇḍalu. Surrounding him are ṛishis, three on either side, a young boy is taking lotus flowers in his hands to Brahmā and another is seen on the top right hand corner of the panel. The ṛishis are here represented as being very emaciated presumably by reason of their austerities. The photograph next reproduced is that of an image of Brahmā to be found in the Madras Museum. It belongs to the Chālukya-Hoysala School and is a standing image, carrying in its hands an akṣhamālā, sruva, pāśa and kamaṇḍalu. Here all the faces of Brahmā have pointed beards.

The original of the next photograph, fig. 2, Pl. CXLVII, is in the Hoysalēśvara temple at Halebidu and is of the later Hoysaḷa period. It is also a standing figure, under a very artistically and delicately carved umbrella and prabhāvaḷi and ornamented with beautifully executed ornaments. It carries in its hands an akṣhmālā, a pāṣa the sruk and the sruva and a kamaṇḍalu. On either side of Brahmā stands a woman carrying a chāmara (chauri); perhaps they represent Sarasvatī and Sāvitrī.

In the Madras Museum is preserved a beautiful bronze image of Brahmā seated under a prabhāvaḷi, whose photograph is reproduced in Pl. CXLII; this image has hṛīṭamakūṭas instead of jaṭāmakūṭas on the heads. The front right hand is held in the abhaya pose and the front left hand in the varada pose; while the back right hand carries an akṣhamālā and the back left hand a kamaṇḍalu. Bronze images of Brahmā are very rare and especially the one like the Madras Museum image, which is an utsava-vigraha, is met with very rarely, if at all. This image clearly points to the existence of Brahmā worship, even with grand festivals and processions, as would appear to be unmistakably evidenced by this utsava-vigraha.

The next illustration, fig. 1, Pl. CXLIII, is from the temple at Tiruvorriyūr. The original is found in the niche in the north wall of the shrine of Gauḷēśvara in the Śiva temple at that place. It belongs to the latter part of the eleventh century A. D. and does not differ from the Kumbhakōṇam image.

THE DIKPALAKAS.

THE DIKPĀLAKAS.

ACCORDING to Hindu mythology, the eight quarters of the universe are governed by the eight guardian deities beginning with Indra and hence these eight deities are known by the name of Dīkpālakas. These deities are —

1. Indra, the lord of the east,
2. Agni, the Lord of the south-east,
3. Yama, of the south,
4. Nirṛuti, of the south-west.
5. Varuṇa, of the west,
6. Vāyu, of the north-west,
7. Kubēra, of the north and
8. Īśāna, of the north-east.

It might be noticed that all these eight deities held prominent positions in the Vēdic period, long before Viṣṇu and Śiva of the modern Trinity, became supreme in Hindu mythology; and the former are now obliged to be content with the more modest situation of the guardianship of the quarters of the universe. It therefore becomes necessary to trace the history of the degradation, so to speak, of these deities from the exalted positions held by them during the Vēdic times.

INDRA.

The word Indra, is derived from Indha, meaning kindler says the Śatapatha-Brāhmaṇa. In the R̥g-vēda he is distinctly mentioned as one born without a fellow : (tvam anapir Indra janushasanadasi) and as one without a rival (akatrur Indra jajñishē). In the Taittirīya saṃhitā Indra is seen contesting his supremacy with Viṣṇu, the Yajñapurusha. The same Śatapatha-Brāhmaṇa mentions that Indra, Agni and Sūrya strove hard to secure the supreme positions among the gods and succeeded this statement gives us an insight into the origin of the Trimūrtis of the later times. In the R̥g-vēda Indra is described as the wielder of the vajra (or iron thunderbolt), encompassing the sky and the waters, and reaching up to heaven and is said to have fixed the earth, the luminaries, propped up the sky and so on, and that these acts were all done under the exhilarating influence of the drink quaffed off from three cups. Though praised as unequalled by other gods or mortals, Indra is not a self-existent being but was born of a mother (R̥g-vēda. x 134, 1).

THE DIKPĀLAKAS.

It has already been stated that the vajra was shaped for Indra by Tvashtri from the bones of Dadhicha. With the vajra he killed the asura named Vṛitra. While he, as the chief of the gods, churned the ocean of milk in company with the asuras, the white elephant named Airāvata, came out of it and this was taken for himself by Indra. The name of the wife of Indra is Indrāṇī or Śachi. In the Mahābhārata, Indra is said to be the father of Arjuna and to have a thousand eyes (or yōnis) spread all over his body because he seduced Ahalya, the wife of the ṛishi Gautama. He is also classed, as we know, as one of the twelve Ādityas.

It is thus seen how Indra, one of the supreme gods of the Vedic period, deteriorated into the chief of the minor gods, the leader of the army of the gods and finally into one of the guardian deities of the eight regions. He was receiving from the human beings some sort of worship on earth, but Kṛishṇa was the first to put a stop to it. It was on this occasion that Indra caused havoc in Gōkula by sending down torrents of rain and it was also then that Kṛishṇa protected the cowherds and their belongings by lifting up the Gōvardhana mountain. In spite of Kṛishṇa's protest against the worship of Indra, it was still existing in the 7th to the 10th centuries of the Christian era.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

The Śilappadigāram, that remarkable gem of dramatic epic of the Tamil language, has a chapter describing how the annual festival of Indra was celebrated in Kāvīrippūm-paṭṭinam, the metropolis of the Chōḷas: it states that the festival began on the Paurṇimā of the solar month Vaiśākha and was continued for twenty-eight days. The date of this work has been determined to be the middle of the eighth century A.D. In an inscription belonging to the reign of Parāntaka Chōḷa I to be found in Toṇḍamānūr near Kaḷahastī, mention is made of the details of the arrangements made for celebrating the festival for Indra. The custom of offering pūjā, and a fortiori of celebrating festivals, to Indra does not obtain at the present day.

The Vēdic deity Indra plays also an important part in the Buddhist and Jaina religious lore. The description of Śakra, as given on p. 78 of Beal's Catena of Buddhist Scriptures is almost exactly the same as that given in Hindu works.

As has been already stated, Indra is the lord of the eastern direction and therefore the image of the deity is to be placed on the eastern side, when a group of the Dīkṣālakas is set up. The places where such a group is generally placed in a Hindu temple are the ceiling of the front maṇḍapa, the eight corners of one of the upper-storeys of the vimāna if it has more storeys than one, and, if the temple has more than one prākāra, in one of them.

The description of the image of Indra, as also of the other Dīkpālakas is contained in almost all the āgamas and in the Bṛihat-saṃhitā and Vishnu-dharmōttara. It is stated in the Aṃśumadbhēdagama that the colour of the image of Indra should be dark and that it should have two eyes and two arms; the image should possess very handsome features and be adorned with the kirita, kuṇḍalas, hāra, kēyūra and other ornaments and be draped in red garments (delicate textured Chinese cloths?). Indra should carry in his right hand the śakti and in the left the aṅkuśa. The neck of the figure of Indra should be thick and the belly rather big, the image might be sitting or standing upon a śikhāsana or be seated upon his elephant, the Airāvata.

To the left of the figure of Indra should be seated that of his consort Indrāṇi, decorated with all ornaments and carrying an utpala flower in the hand, and the features should be those of a gay and joyful young woman. On either side of this celestial pair should be represented two Gandharva women waving multicoloured *chāmara*s.

Some of the other authorities have practically the same description but differ in stating that the articles held in the hand by Indra are the vajra

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

and aṅkuśa or a nīlōtpala flower; while the others state that the colour of Indra should be white and that he should have a third eye lying horizontally in the middle of the forehead and four arms,—one of the right hands of which is to carry the vajra, the other right hand a padma, while one of the left arms should be passed round the figure of Indrāṇī as in embracing and the remaining left hand should carry the aṅkuśa

Indrāṇī should be of the colour of gold and be clad in blue garments. She should have two arms of which one should be embracing Indra and the other hand should carry a śaṅkha-māṅgarī. The Vishṇudharmōttara adds that she should be seated upon the left lap of her lord

The elephant Airāvata should have four tusks, two on either side.

Two photographs are reproduced in illustration of the description of the figure of Indra. The first figure Pl. CL, is to be found in Chidambaram. Indra is seated upon his Airāvata and has four arms, the front two hands are in the abhaya and varada poses and the back hands carry the aṅkuśa and the vajra. The second one, fig. 1, Pl. CLI, is seated on a bhadrāpīṭha and has four arms. The front right hand is kept in the varada pose and holds in it an akṣamālā; the front left hand carries a kamaṇḍalu and the back right and left hands hold the aṅkuśa and the vajra respectively. The head is adorned with a jaṭāmaḥuta and a number of necklaces and an yajñōparita adorns the chest.

AGNI

Agni was also a very important deity in the Vēdic age and with Indra and Sūrya formed the Triad of that period. As with Indra this principal deity came, in course of time, to occupy a very minor place in the Hindu Pantheon. He was the most adorable to all hōtrīs, he it was who knew the proper seasons to worship the gods with oblations, he was the medium through whom the gods received their share of offerings and he was believed to be concealing himself in waters or plants. He was the lord of the house, the resplendent guest of the house and is friendly to man. He was also a terror to the rākshasas and yātudhānas, whom he crushed between his iron teeth. His birth is accounted for in various ways. He is said to have been brought down from the sky, generated by Indra between two clouds, by Dyaus and in the waters. He has a triple existence, namely, as fire on earth, as lightning in the atmosphere and as the sun in the sky and that the sun entered into him at night and emerged out of him at dawn. Agni was actually generated in the Vēdic age by the rubbing of one piece of wood with another vigorously. the lower piece was called the araṇi and the child thus born, that is, the fire, was found to consume its own mother, the wood. The description of Agni as he was conceived by the Vēdic bards is that he had two heads, four horns, three feet and seven arms.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

Later on Agni is identified definitely with Rudra and Śiva and is therefore considered to be the father of Kārttikēya. He becomes the destroyer among the later trinity and he is also considered to be capable of conferring blessings upon humanity; truly does Agni (fire) destroy everything if not handled properly and is therefore a source of damage to man; also he is an excellent friend of man conferring the boon of removing all obnoxious matter, perishing or decaying matter by burning them down and rendering the surroundings of human dwellings clean and healthy. At present Agni occupies a minor position as the medium or agency for conveying the offerings, made through him, to gods. His wife is Svāhā.

We have a fine description of Agni of the later period given in the Harivaṃśa. There he is represented as draped in black clothes, has the smoke for his standard and head-gear and carries a flaming spear. His chariot is drawn by horses of red colour and the winds are the wheels of his chariot. He has a ram as his pet animal and he is more often shown as riding this animal instead of in a chariot as described above. The following is the Āgamic description of Agni.

Agni should be of red colour, with four arms and three eyes and the hair or jaṭā of the head which should also be of red colour, standing on end and forming a sort of mabhāmaṇḍala. He should be seated upon a ram. The front two hands should be held in the varaḍa and abhaya poses, while in the back right hand there should be the śruḥ and in the back left hand the śakti. If he is represented as having only two arms, they should carry the śruḥ and śakti respectively. According to another authority, Agni should be of the colour of molten gold or the red colour of the rising sun and be clad in red garments; he should have also moustaches and a yajñōpavīta. In his hands he should keep the akṣhamālā and the hamaṇḍalu. Where he is represented as possessing four arms, the Viṣṇu-dharmōttara states, he should carry in his right hands the flames of fire (grālās) and the trīśūla and in one of the left hands the akṣhamālā, while the remaining left hand should be embracing his wife Svāhā. It also adds that Agni should have four sharp tusks and that his chariot should be drawn by four parrots and that the banner on it should be the smoke (dhūmakētu). The driver of the chariot of Agni is Vāyu. His consort Svāhā should be clothed in red garments, be smeared with kuñhuma (saffron paste) and be adorned with mātra (?) and be carrying a ratna-pātra in her hand (that is, a vessel containing gems or one set with gems)

According to a third authority the colour of Agni should be yellow like that of Brahṃā and he should also be represented like Brahṃā with golden coloured jaṭās and eyes of yellow colour he is to be carrying in his hands the akṣhamālā and the śaktiyāyudha and be seated upon a seat known as the ardha-chandrāsana.

Two illustrations of the figure of Agni are given on Pls CLII and figure 2, CLIII. The first figure is found in the Śiva temple at Kaṇḍiyūr in Travancore. It has two heads which are of the goat, seven arms and three legs. Of the seven arms four are on the right side and three on the left. The second figure belongs to the Śiva temple at Chidambaram and is almost similar to the first figure. Instead of the faces being those of goats, as in the first figure, they are human in this case and a bull (not a ram as required by the āgamas) is sculptured behind Agni as his vehicle.

YAMA OR VAIVASVATA

Yama is also a deity of some celebrity of the Vēdic period. In the R̥igvēda he is mentioned as the son of Vivasvat and of Śaranyū, the daughter of Tvashtri, with a twin sister named Yami. This sister of his importuned him to become her husband, but he successfully resisted the incestuous offer. He was the first man who died, reached the other world and showed others the path to that world. He guides other men thither, and assembles them in a house which is secured to them for ever. He is, however, nowhere in the Vēdic period, represented as a punisher of sins; nevertheless he is still an object of terror. He has two dogs each with four eyes and wide nostrils which guard the road to this last abode of the mortals. In one place he is actually identified with death.

In the later day mythology he is reduced to the situation of the guardian of the region of the deceased, and, as the presiding deity of the place, he is invested with the powers of appraising the quality and quantity of the sin committed by each soul and meting out proportioned punishments: as the dispenser of justice he is also known as Dharmarāja. He is said to be the father of Dharma, the eldest of the five Pāṇḍavas. The following description of the image of Yama occurs in the Sanskrit authorities .

Yama should be of dark colour, resembling the rain-cloud, with two arms, fire-coloured eyes and sharp side-tusks. He should be adorned with a kirita-makuta and other ornaments, a red flower garland and be covered over with red sandal-paste and draped in red garments. He may be seated either on a simhāsana or on a ho-buffalo. His hands should bear a khadga and a khēṭaka or a fruit and tender leaves or daṇḍa and pāśa.

On either side of Yama should be standing Mṛityu and Sainhitā, with terrific faces and of dazzling blue and red colours respectively. Besides these there should be also two women waving chāmaras on either side of Yama. In front of Yama should be standing two Brāhmaṇas called Dharma and Adharma, as also at the door, Chitrāgupta and Kālī, all clothed in red garments. Yama should be surrounded by the dēvas, asuras, dharmis (those who have done good acts) and pāpis (sinners) ever worshipping him.

The Vishnudharmōttara states that the colour of Yama's garments is golden yellow and that, seated on his left lap, there should be his consort Dhūmōrṇā whose complexion is that of the nīlōt-pala flower. Yama has four arms, while his consort has only two. In his right hand Yama keeps the daṇḍa and the khaḍga and in the left hand a flaming triśūla and the akṣhamālā. The right arm of Dhūmōrṇā is to be passed behind Yama in embrace with the left hand bearing a pomegranate fruit. On the right side stands Chitragupta dressed like the Westerners (āpīchyaevēsha); he is to be of fine looks and to carry in his right hand a stile and in the left a palm leaf for recording the acts of the mortals. To the left of Yama stands Kāla of terrific appearance and armed with the pāśa.

The figure of Yama whose photograph is given on Pl. CLIII is found in the Śiva temple at Chidambaram. It has two arms, the right hand carries a pāśa and the left a gada. There is a small karaṇḍa-makuṭa on the head and a number of ornaments on the person. His vehicle, a bull, is standing behind him.

NIRṚUTĪ

Nirṛutī is also a deity of the Vedic period, though mention is made of this deity in the Rigvēda, neither the Vedic nor later literature throws much light on it. In the dictionaries Nirṛutī is said to be Alakṣmī, (Jyēsthādēvī), a rākṣasa, etc. In later mythology Nirṛutī is made the guardian of the south-western region of the universe and an elaborate description of this divinity is given in the āgamas and other authoritative works.

Nirṛuti is said to be of blue colour, with a large body draped in yellow garments and seated either on a bhadrapūtha, a lion or riding on the shoulders of a man.<sup>(1)</sup> The Vishṇudharmōttara states that he must be seated on an ass, bearing a daṇḍa in his hand. He should have a terrific appearance with ill-looking eyes, gaping mouth, exposing teeth and side tusks, and the hair on the head standing on end. However, he should be adorned with all ornaments and with garlands composed of all flowers and be surrounded by Rākshasas and seven Apsaras women. He should have two arms, in the right hand there should be a sword and in the left one a shield. According to the Vishṇudharmōttara Nirṛuti has four consorts named Dēvi, Kṛishṇāṅgī, Kṛishṇāvaḍanā and Kṛishṇapāśa and these should also be with him. The Apsaras ladies surrounding Nirṛuti should be clothed with silk garments, and should be of handsome looks, with smiling countenances, large breasts and glutials, thick thighs and slender waists, they should smear different kinds of sweet smelling scents on their bodies.

One illustration of Nirṛuti is given in fig. 2, on Pl. CLIV. Herein Nirṛuti is seen riding upon the shoulders of a man and carrying a daṇḍa in his right hand.

VARUNA.

Varuṇa was no doubt an important deity of the Vêdic period; he belonged to the triad, Indra, Varuṇa and Agni. He is praised often in company with Indra or Mitra as the possessor of illimitable resources and as upholding the heaven and the earth. He is the lord of the rain, the water and the sea. Except for the fact that he is the guardian of the west, he is practically overlooked in modern mythology. At the present when the rain fails he is invoked by mantras and pūjā and prayed to send down showers.

Varuṇa is of white colour, is draped in yellow garments and possesses a pacific look. His head should be adorned with a karaṇḍa-makuṭa and all other ornaments and should be wearing on his person an yajñōpavīta. He should be represented as of strong constitution and as seated or standing upon a fish or makara (a kind of aquatic animal, more mythical than real) or a crocodile. He may be represented as possessing two or four arms, if shown with two arms only, one hand should be in the varada pose and the other should be carrying a pāśa ; if with four, one of the hands should be in the varada pose, while the remaining ones should carry the pāśa, a snake and a kamanḍalu.

As usual, the Vishṇudharmōttara has a different description from those found in the āgamas. It states that Varuṇa should be seated in a chariot drawn by seven hamsas, his colour is like the raiḍūrya (a precious gem) and he must be draped in white garments and adorned with ornaments set with pearls and necklaces composed of the same material. He should have a slightly hanging belly and four arms. Over his head there should be a white umbrella and on his left the fish banner. In the right hands of Varuṇa there should be the padma and the pāśa and in the left hands the śankha and the ratna-pātra. A very good looking consort of his should be seated on his left lap with a nīlōtpala in her left hand and her right arm embracing Varuṇa, her lord.

To the right and left respectively of Varuṇa should be standing the river goddesses Gaṅgā and Yamunā. Gaṅgā of moon-like white colour and possessing a pretty face should be standing on a matsya or makara, with a chāmara in one hand and a padma in the other, and Yamunā, also possessing good looks and having the colour of the nilōtpala flower, should be standing on a tortoise with a chāmara in one hand and a nilōtpala in the other.

Varuṇa being the lord of the ocean he is represented in the descriptions as keeping with him the padma, the śaṅkha and a vessel containing ratnas (or gems)—the sea being believed by the Hindus to be the repository of gems—and as being attended upon by the river goddesses.

Illustrations of the river goddesses, Gaṅgā and Yamunā are given on Pls. CLV and CLVI. Fig. 1, Pl. CLV represents Gaṅgā, she is standing upon a makara under the shade of a tree. Her right elbow rests upon the shoulder of a female attendant, while the left hand carries some object which is not quite clear in the photograph. Two more dwarfish attendants are on her left side. Yamunā is represented in fig. 2 on the same plate. She also stands under a tree one of whose branches she holds by her left hand. The right hand is held in the sūcī pose. She is standing upon a kūrma (tortoise). On either side of her is an attendant. Pl. CLVI is a very finely carved gate-way of a ruined temple of Śiva at Kharod, in the Bilāspūr district of the Central Province. On the jambs of this gate are sculptured Gaṅgā and Yamunā; Gaṅgā stands on the proper right and Yamunā on

VĀYU

Vāyu is also a Vēdic, elemental deity. His place is in the air. He is said to have Indra as his charioteer or his companion in his chariot; however, he does not occupy any very prominent place in the Vēdas. He is called the son-in-law of Tvashṭri and is reputed to be handsome looking in appearance. Maruts or winds are not associated somehow with Vāyu, though in one instance he is said to have given birth to them by the rivers of heaven.

In the later mythology he is assigned the guardianship of the north-west region of the universe. He is said, in the Mahābhārata, to be the father of Bhima, as also of Hanumān. The Mādhvas believe that their Āchārya, Ānandatīrtha, is an incarnation of Vāyu.

Vāyu should be a youthful person of powerful constitution, of black colour and possessing two or four arms. His eyes must be of red colour and his garments, white. He should have a wavy-curved brow and be adorned with all ornaments. In his right hand it is stated, there should be a dhvaja (banner) and in the left a daṇḍa. It might also mean that the right hand should be held in the patāka-hasta pose. Some authorities prescribe the aṅkuśa in the right hand of this deity. His hair should be dishevelled and he may be seated either on a śimhāsana or on a deer; the latter is more often met with in sculptures as the vehicle of Vāyu. He should also appear to be in a haste to move very quickly. The Vishṇudharmōttara states that the colour both of the body and of the garment of Vāyu should be sky-blue and that he should carry in his hands the chakra and a dhvaja. Vāyu should have his mouth open. To his left should be seated his consort.

DHANADA OR KUBĒRA.

The words Dhanada or Kubēra literally mean the giver of wealth or a person with a deformed body. The story of Kubēra who is also known by the name of Vaiśrāvaṇa is given in the Uttara-kāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa thus.—Brahmā begot a mind-born son named Pulastya, the latter had a son named Gaviputra-Vaiśrāvaṇa. This Vaiśrāvaṇa left his father and joined Brahmā, who granted him, in return for his devotion to himself, immortality and lordship over riches and installed him in Laṅkā as his capital. Pulastya, incensed at the faithlessness of his first son, made one portion of his self be born as Viśravas, who looked with disdain upon his ungrateful brother Vaiśrāvaṇa. Vaiśrāvaṇa

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

wishing to pacify his father presented him with three good looking Rākshasis named Pushpōtkata, Mālīnī and Rākā. By Pushpōtkata Pulastya had two sons Rāvana and Kumbhakarna; by Mālīnī, Vibhishana; by Rākā, Khara and Sūrpanakhā. These later born sons of Pulastya being envious of Vaiśrāvana's prosperity practised austerities; pleased with them Brahmā conferred upon Rāvana the boon of possessing at will any number of heads and shapes, and of being invincible except by men. Having obtained these powers Rāvana came to Laṅkā, expelled Vaiśrāvana and made himself the master of the place. Kubēra retired to the hill Gandhamādana. Elsewhere Vaiśrāvana, Rāvana and others are said to be the sons of Viśravas and also that Kailāsa became the abode of Kubēra and that his wife was Riddhi. It is somewhat strange to hear in the Rāmāyaṇa that Mahādēva went to the Kailāsa to pay a visit to Kubēra, when it is remembered that the Kailāsa is believed to be the abode especially of Mahādēva.

Another account of the origin of Dhanada is to be found in the Varāhapurāṇa. When Brahmā entertained the desire to create the universe, a shower of lime-stones began to pour forth from his face attended with a hurricane. After sometime the fury of the storm broke down and everything became calm by the wish of Brahmā. He asked the mass of stones which thus fell from him to assume the form of a divine person of peaceful countenance and appointed him as the Lord of Wealth and commanded him to be also the guardian of the riches of the gods.

In the Buddhist literature and mythology also Kubēra is the god of riches and the guardian deity of the northern region of the universe. He is also the lord over the Yakshas and is the husband of Hārītī. He has also the name Vaiśiāvaṇa (whose Prākṛit form Vassāvaṇa, is current in Ceylon) and Jambhala.

The āgamas also recognise him as the master of the Yakshas and describe his figure as follows :—The colour of Kubēra according to one authority should be golden yellow and according to another crimson, the colour of his underwear is to be red, and the upper garment, white. His person should be adorned with all ornaments, including a kirita, or a karaṇḍa-makuta, kuṇḍalas and necklaces composed of a series of golden coins. He should be good looking, or even terrific looking and possessing either two or four arms. If the arms are only two, the hands may be kept in the varaḍa and abhaya poses or the left hand may keep in it a

gadā : if, on the contrary, he has four arms one of them should be embracing his consort Vibhavā and another one embracing Vṛiddhi, seated on the left and right laps respectively of Kubēra ; the remaining hands should carry the gadā and the śakti. The Vishṇudharmōttara states that his left eye should be of yellowish brown colour (piṅgala), that he should be dressed in the fashion of the westerners (āpichyavēsha), that his body should be protected with an armour, that he should have a pair of moustaches and that there should also be side-tusks in his mouth. All the authorities are uniform in asserting that Kubēra should have a rather big and slightly pendant belly. He may be seated on a padmapīṭha or be driving in a chariot drawn by men or even directly seated on the shoulders of a man. The Amśumadbhūdāgama states that the vehicle of Kubēra is a ram. To the right and left of Kubēra there should be respectively the Śankha-nidhi and the Padmanidhi whose descriptions are as follows. these two personifications should resemble in shape the bhūtas, that is, with short limbs attached to a large trunk and surmounted by a large face, carrying in their hands lotus flowers. They should be draped in white clothes, adorned with *haraṇḍa-makuta*s and placed upon padmapīṭhas. In another place it is stated that he should be surrounded by the eight kinds of wealth and by a number of Yakshas.

THE DIKPAĀLAKAS

The two goddesses Vibhavā and Vṛiddhī should in their turn be embracing Dhanada each by one arm and carrying in the other hand a ratna-pātra.

The Rūpamaṇḍana prescribes the elephant as the vāhana of Kubēra and states that his four hands should carry the gaṇḍā, a purse containing money, a pomegranate fruit and a kamaṇḍalu.

In the Buddhist mythology, Kubēra is sculptured exactly as in the Hindu representation, but he is immediately recognised as Kubēra by a mongoose which is generally also shown either as sitting upon his left lap or placed on his left side. (See Figs. 196 and 199* in V. A. Smith's History of Fine Art in India and Ceylon).

ĪŚĀNA

The lord of the north-east region of the universe is Īśāna. From the description given of him, we know he is the same as Mahādēva or Śīva. Īśāna should have three eyes, a pacific appearance, white complexion and should be draped in white garments and in tiger's skin. His head should be adorned with a jaṭā-makuta, his chest should bear an ordinary white yaḥṇōpavīta or a nāga-yaḥṇōpavīta and otherwise also adorned with all ornaments. There should be the crescent moon on the jaṭā-makuṭa. He may be seated either on a padmāsana or better upon a white bull. If he is represented with only two arms, his hands must carry a triśūla and a kapāla or one of the hands (the left one generally) might be in the varada pose, if, however, he has four hands, the two front ones should be sculptured as playing upon a viṇā and the others are to be held in the varada and abhaya poses. This description seems to be incorrect; for the viṇā must be held only by the hands of the front pair of arms, which are also the very hands that are necessarily to be in the varada and abhaya poses.

THE ASVINI-DEVATAS.

THE AŚVINI-DĒVATĀS

THE twin-gods, the Aśvini-dēvatās, were playing an important part in the Vēdic period. Yāska says in his Nirukta that these gods Aśvins were so-called because they pervaded everything (vyāśnurātē), one of them with moisture and the other with light ; but Aurnavabha derives the name from aśva, a horse. Who these gods were the commentators of the Vēdas themselves are not able to answer, some say these were personifications of heaven and earth, others of day and night and yet others, the sun and moon. Prof. Roth thinks that they represent Indra and Āditya and that they are the harbingers of the Dawn to usher whose existence they hurry on in their chariot. In the R̥gvēda they are said to be the sons of Vivasvat and Śaraṇyū in one place, of the sky in another and of the ocean in a third. The Taittirīya-saṁhitā calls them the youngest of the gods and the brothers of Ushas. They are also associated with Sūryā, the daughter of the sun, and are held to be young, beautiful, bright and agile and as wearing lotus garlands; they were possessed of wonderful therapeutic power and are said to have helped many with this power of theirs. We have already seen that they restored the head of Yajña-Nārāyaṇa which was accidentally severed. They are described as always riding in a chariot drawn by fleet horses. Nothing very definite about these gods or their position in the Vēdic mythology is known and yet it is a well-known fact that they are very often invoked in the Vēdic literature.

In the Purāṇic period different stories are given for the origin of the Aśvins. For example, the Varahapurāṇa gives the following account of the birth of the Aśvins. Sūrya (the sun) married the girl named Samjñā who was offered by Tvashta and begot through her Yama and Yamunā. Samjñā, however, was able to bear no more the heat of Sūrya and resolved to run away from him. Leaving behind her her shadow (chhāya) and assuming the form of a horse (badabā) repaired to Uttarakuru. By Chhāyā, Sūrya had two children named Śani and Tapati. All the children of Sūrya were ill-treated by Chhāyā and Yama and Śani complained against her to their father. For this they were cursed by Chhāyā as the effect of which Yama had become the lord of the prētas, but the hard lot was mitigated by the intercession of the father who made him even in this accursed state to be the god of Dharma and be also one of the Lōkapālas, guarding the southern quarter of the Universe, and Śani obtained powerfully evil eyes through the curse of Chhāyā. After all these events were over, Sūrya learnt that Sainjñā was living as a mare in Uttarakuru, went there in the form of a stallion, joined her and begot the twin children named the Aśvins, who are, in this account, held to be the personifications of prāṇa and apāna, the two vital airs which sustain animal life. In the cosmic evolution, these gods came into existence on the devīgā tithi. With the help of their father Sūrya they obtained a place among the gods and became the custodians of the amṛita and physicians to the celestials. The Aśvins are known by the name of Nāsatyas. Curiously enough these deities, little understood by even the Vēdic commentators, have received a great deal of consideration in the hands of the authors of the various Āgamas. In fact, a number of Āgamas contain a description of the images of the Aśvini-dēvatās. It is highly doubtful if ever they were sculptured and set up in temples, for at the present time we do not hear of the existence of such images anywhere in India, as svayampradhāna deities. No doubt they are carved on the same block of stone as was used for the sculpturing of the image of the sun, as attendants of this latter deity. The following description of the images of the Aśvins is found in the Ānśumadbhṛdāgama. These gods should be represented as horse-faced and be seated together upon a siṃhāsana. They should be adorned with a jaṭā-makuṭa on the head, the yajñōparīta, garlands of yellow flowers, and with all other ornaments. The colour of their body is to be red, like the flower of the pomegranate tree. The Aśvins should have lotus-like beautiful eyes and each only a pair of arms, in the left hand they should keep each a book, while their right hands should be held in the abhaya pose. The right legs of the gods should be hanging below the seat, while the left one must be folded and rested upon it. The names of these gods are given as Nāsatya and Dasra. On either side of the Aśvins should be the figures of the females called Mṛita-saṃjivini and Viśalyakaraṇi waving chauris (*chāmara*s). The colour of these goddesses is said to be brown.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

On the left of the Aśvins there should be the figures of Danvantari and Ātrēya, adorned with all ornaments, draped in black garments and carrying in their hands a sword and a shield each. Their colour should be yellow and red respectively.

THE AŚVINI-DĒVATĀS.

In the Suprabhēdāgama it is stated that the colours of the Aśvins are white and yellow respectively and that they ought to be clothed in white garments and should have turbans on their heads. The Pūrvakāraṇāgama which also contains their description does not differ materially from the above two authorities. But the Vishṇu-dharmōt-tara gives a somewhat different description. It substitutes instead of the abhaya pose required by the Āgamas a vessel containing drugs (ōshadhīs) in their right hands. On the right and left of these gods are to be standing, according to this authority, two goddesses named Rūpa-sampat and Ākṛitī of great beauty and of white (?) and grass green colours respectively, bearing in their hands vessels set with gems ; and these must be dressed in white garments.

Illustrations of the Aśvini-dēvatās might be seen on the sculpture of Sūrya reproduced on Pl. XC, fig. 3, of Volume I of this work.

DEMI-GODS.

DEMI-GODS.

HINDU mythology includes in its fold a number of minor gods such as the ṛishis, pitris and nāgas. A brief account and the description of the images of these will be given in the following paragraphs. The figures of ṛishis, apsarasas and others are, according to the āgamas, required to be placed in Hindu temples, and as such are not mere mythological curiosities having theoretical existences and possessing imaginary descriptions. We meet with their representations here and there in temples and the description of these is not to be considered out of place in a work of this kind. Besides, the present compilation being a close following of the āgamas both in arrangement and description, the existence of the descriptions of these demi-gods in the āgamas necessitates the incorporation of such descriptions in the present publication also. Among the heading the demi-gods are included in this chapter the following.—

1. Vasus,
2. Nāgadēva and the Nāgas,
3. Sādhyas,
4. Asuras,
5. Apsarasas,

(i) VASUS.

In the R̥gveda, the number of gods is said to be thirty-three which is composed of the eight Vasus, eleven Rudras, twelve Ādityas and the heaven and the earth. According to the Rāmāyaṇa all the thirty-three gods were the sons of Aditi, while according to the Mahābhārata they were the attendants upon the sun and were worshipping him.

We learn from the Śrī Bhāgavata that in the sixth Manvantara, Daksha had by his wife Asikni sixty daughters. He married them to the Prajāpatīs. Dharma obtained thus ten daughters of Daksha, of whom one, Vasu, begot the eight Vasus. Once upon a time, says the Devībhāgavata the Vasus with their respective wives went out enjoying pleasure and reached the āśrama (hermitage) of Vasishṭha. The wife of Dyau one of the Vasus seeing the celestial cow named Nandini in the abode of Vasishṭha, asked her husband about the nature of the cow and who her owner was. He informed her that it belonged to Vasishṭha and had the rare quality of giving milk which was able to make those that drank it live eternally young and of sound health. The wife of Dyau requested her husband to carry away the cow to their residence, for she wanted her human friend, the daughter of the king Uśinara, to drink the milk of Nandinī and to live long in unfading youth and sound health. The Vasu robbed Vasishtha of his cow and was conducting her to his home, the ṛishi perceiving through his mental eye the mischief perpetrated by the Vasu, cursed all the Vasus to become human beings. Thereupon the Vasus hurried to the āśrama of Vasishtha to beg for his pardon and to request him to restore them once again to the state of gods. He promised that the other Vasus except Dyau would regain their celestial condition after the lapse of a year, Dyau alone should continue to be a human being for a long time. Disgusted with the human existence that was soon to come upon them and to divest themselves of it in an honourable way, they requested the river goddess Gaṅgā to be temporarily born on the earth as a woman, to become the wife of the king Śantanu and beget them as her children, whom, they requested, she should throw away into the river one after another as they were born. To this Gaṅgā agreed and the Vasus were born to her and being disposed of as requested by them, they then reached their former position in heaven.

The names of the eight Vasus are given in a majority of the authorities as follows.—Dhara, Dhruva, Sōma, Āpa, Anala, Anila, Pratyusha and Prabhāsa. In one work the name of Savitṛi is substituted for Āpa in the above list. The general features of the images of the Vasus are that they should have each two arms, two eyes, and be of red colour; they should be clothed in yellow garments and be adorned with karaṇḍa-makuṭas. They should have side tusks, terrific look, sinuous brows and fine hair. As in the case of all other images these should also be adorned with all ornaments. They may either be seated or standing and should be carrying in their hands the khaḍga and the khēṭaka respectively. The Suprabhēdāgama, among the Śaivāgamas, and the Viśvakarma-śāstra agree in stating that the colour of the Vasus is golden yellow and the latter prescribes beautifully embroidered red garments for the images of their demi-gods. The Viśvakarma-śāstra gives detailed descriptions of each one of the Vasus. According to this authority the images of the Vasus ought to possess four arms. In the following table are given the various articles carried in their hands by the eight Vasus.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

(ii) NAGADEVA AND THE NAGAS

The Nāgas are, according to the purāṇic authorities, a race of serpents who inhabited the Pātāla-lōka or the nether regions. The Mahābhārata and the Varāhapurāṇa give the origin of the Nāgas. By Dākshayani, the daughter of Dakṣa, Kāśyapa begot the seven serpents beginning with Vāsuki. Their progeny increased and the world was flooded with serpents to the great detriment of man. The latter complained to Brahmā about the hardship caused to them by the serpents. Brahmā summoned the serpents to his presence and cursed them to be ruined by the imprecations of their mother which she uttered in the Svāyam bhūva-manvantara and banished them to the Pātāla-lōka with the command that they should not bite any human beings, except those who were predestined to die a premature death and those that were really bad. We learn from the Mahābhārata that the Nāgas were the sons of Kadru and Kāśyapa, that they induced their step-brother Vainatēya (Garuḍa) to fetch for them the amṛita (ambrosia) preserved in the kingdom of Indra, that they were made to grant freedom to Vinata and her sons from the voluntary bondage they had entered into under Kadru, that they were deprived of the amṛita brought down by Garuḍa, that Indra carried it away once again to his abode, that by licking the kusa grass on which the vessel of amṛita was placed they had their tongues split in twain and other accounts. In historical times, portions of India were inhabited by a race of men who went by the name of the Nāgas and they are said to have formed the majority of persons who joined the newly started Buddhistic religion. Some scholars of Malabar are inclined to believe that the modern Nāyars (Śūdras) of Malabar might be descendants of the early Nāgas, a name which, in modern times might have been corrupted into Nāyars. The hypothesis is more fictitious and fanciful, than real and tenable.

The Nāgas are believed to have been born on the Pāñchamī tithi of the bright half of the month Śrāvaṇa and the whole of India offers pūjās to the Nāgas on this day, except the Draviḍa brāhmaṇas, in Southern India the Mahrāṭa and the Kannaḍa women observe the previous day, the chaturthi, also as sacred to the Nāgas, a custom which is nowhere seen to be observed. It is a common sight all over India to meet with the Nāga images set up under big pipal trees by scores and worshipped occasionally. Childless people take a vow to set up the images of Nāgas in anticipation of being blessed with children and celebrate the Nāgapratishṭhā ceremony with great pomp and at great expenditure.

A description is found in the Amśumadbhēdā-gama of Nāgadēva, which appears to be that of the chief of the Nāgas. It states that the image of Nāgadēva should have three eyes, four arms, a beautiful countenance and be of red colour. The image should be adorned with a kaṇḍā-makūṭa on its head and all other ornaments on its person and should be standing upon a padma-piṭha. The hands of the front arms should be kept in the varāḍa and abhaya poses, while the back hands should be keeping each a snake in it. Over the head of Nāgaraja should be a hood of a five headed cobra and he must be draped in white clothes.

The Śilparatna adds that the Nāgas should be half human and half serpentine in shape, the lower part, below the navel being that of a snake. Their heads must be covered with hoods having one, three, five or seven heads and they should have split tongues like those of snakes. In their hands they must carry a sword and a shield respectively. The Maya-śilpa gives the detailed descriptions of the seven great Nāgas, Vāsuki,

Takshaka, Kārkōtaka, Padma, Mahāpadma, Śaṅkhapāla and Kuḷika as follows :—

The colour of Vāsuki is pearl-white ; that of Takshaka glistening red and he must have on his hood the mark of the svastika. The colour of Kārkōṭaka is black and on his hood there should be three white stripes , Padma is of the rosy hue of the lotus flower, with a white streak and adorned with coral ornaments. The colour of Mahāpadma is white with the mark of triśūla on his hood ; whereas that of Śaṅkhapāla, is yellow with a white streak on his hood ; the colour of Kuḷika is also red and his hood bears the mark of the crescent moon. All these seven great serpents should have two tongues and two arms and a hood with seven heads held over their human heads bearing on them gems. They must all be clad in one or three coats and carry in their hands an akṣhamālā and a kamaṇḍalu.

Two photographs are reproduced in illustration of the descriptions given above. Fig. 1, Pl. CLVII, is the photograph of the Nāga and Nāgiṇī to be found in the Hoysaḷēśvara temple at Halebidu. The lower parts of these are in the form of snakes and are entwined with each other. The head of the Nāga has over it a hood of cobra with seven heads, whereas that of the Nāgiṇī one of three heads. The

Fig. 2 on the same plate is that of a piece of sculpture of a Nāgiṇi preserved in the Madras Museum. As in the previous instance the Nāgiṇi has her lower half that of the snake. She has on her head a karaṇḍa-makuta which is covered by a cobra hood with three heads in it. She carries a sword and a shield in her right and left hands respectively.

(m) SĀDHYAS.

According to the Nirukta the word Sādhya means a ray of light. The gods who abide in the sky and absorb water and other liquids are said to be the Sādhyas. They are said to be adorable even by the gods.

The Sādhyas are twelve in number and are named, according to the Āgripurāṇa, Māna, Manta, Prāna, Nara, Apāna, Vīryavān, Vinubhaya, Naya, Damśa, Nārāyaṇa, Vṛṣha and Prabhi. These are said to be the sons of Dharma and were great souls (mahātmas). The images of Sādhyas should be represented as seated upon padmāsanas and as carrying in their hands the akṣhamālā and the kamaṇḍalu.

(iv) ASURAS.

The Asuras and Rākshasas are very old demi-gods. They are often mentioned in the Vēdic period. The Nirukta says that the word asura implies a cloud that sprinkles water. The dark mass of cloud was evidently personified into a wicked being which required to be chastened by Indra to pour down rain. The asuras are included in the Pañchajana which, according to the Nirukta was composed of the Gandharvas, the Pitris, the Dēvas, the Asuras and the Rākshasas, but Śāyana enumerates them as the gods, men, serpents, Gandharvas including the Apsarasas and the Pitris. From the Taittirīyasaṃhitā we learn that the earth once belonged to the asuras and the gods had only a very small place on it. The gods asked the asuras for more, upon which the asuras desired to know how much of the land they would require. The Dēvas replied "as much as this she-jackal can go round in three steps." The asuras consented to grant this request of the Dēvas and Indra assumed for the occasion the form of a she-jackal and stepped round the whole of the earth in three strides. Then again we learn from the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa that the gods became distinguished from the asuras under the following circumstances : being the descendants of Prajāpati, they both obtained their father's inheritance, namely, speech,—true and false ; they both spoke truth and falsehood. The gods then abandoned falsehood and took exclusively to truth. As a consequence, the gods became weaker and poorer. The poet admits naively that truth certainly reduces people at first to the conditions mentioned above, but that the gods ultimately became prosperous. The asuras, on the other hand, took to falsehood and indulged solely in it. Truth became in after-times the triple science (trayīvidyā). In other ways also the asuras sank lower in status than their brothers the dēvas. In striving to attain higher positions, the asuras did not know to whom they should offer their oblations and through presumption went on taking them into their own mouths, whereas the gods offered the oblations to each other. Because of their presumption, the asuras were overcome by the dēvas. In the Aitiḥāsic period the Rākshasas are often described as dark, ugly, impure people, addicted to man-eating.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

The images of asuras are required to be made in a variety of forms with terrific appearances, having fearful side tusks, ugly eyes surmounted with curling awkward brows, and carrying several kinds of weapons. They should be adorned with all ornaments, including the kirita and the kuṇḍalas.

(v) APSARASAS.

The Apsarasas are so called because they are said to have sprung from the waters when the ocean was churned for obtaining ambrosia (amṛita). They are believed to be celestial nymphs with no one as their particular husbands and that they were courting human heroes as they ascended the heaven. In the Uttara-kāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa we are told that Rāvaṇa considered the apsarasas as mere courtezans, without any husbands and with this conviction he ravished against her protestations Rambhā, the most beautiful of all the apsarasas, even though she pointed to him that she being the wife of Naḷakuvēra, the son of his (Rāvaṇa's) brother Kubēra. The apsarasas are said to be seven in number and the names of the most important of these are given as Rambhā, Vipulā, Urvasī, and Tīlōttama.

In sculpturing the images of the apsarasas they should be represented as having slender waists, large gluteals and well developed busts. They should all look very pretty with a smiling countenance and adorned with all ornaments and draped in silk garments. They must be standing erect (sambhaṅga) on bhadra-pīṭhas.

(vi) PISĀCHAS.

Who this class of beings are is not clearly known; but that they are known to have been referred to from very early times is evident from literature. Their images are required to be represented as of extremely emaciated appearance, with the knobs of the bones jutting out and the veins visible under the surface of the skins; they must be composed of the bones, tendons and skin only. The hair on their head should be stiff and spread out.

(vii) VĒTĀLAS.

Another obscure class of beings are the Vētālas, whose descriptions in the āgamas are not very different from those of the Pisāchas. The only difference between them is that the latter should be tall in stature, with parched up belly and projecting cheek-bones.

(viii) PITRIS

Hiraṇyagarbha Manu had Marīchi and other sons; the sons of these latter are known as the Pitris or Pitṛigaṇas. Mention is made of seven such gaṇas and they are as follows:—

- (a) Virāt's sons were the Pitṛis of the Sādh-yas and were called the Sōmasad.

DEMI-GODS.

- (b) Marichi's sons, those of the Dēvatas and were called the Agnishvāta.
- (c) Atri's sons, those of the Daityas, Dānavas, Yakshas, Gandharvas, Urugas and the Rākshasas and were called the Barhiṣhad.
- (d) Kavi's (Śukrāchārya's) sons, those of the Brāhmaṇas and were called the Sōmapa.
- (e) Aṅgiras' sons, those of Kshatriyas and were called the Havirbhuja.
- (f) Pulastya's sons, those of the Vaiśyas and were called the Ājyapa, and
- (g) Vasishṭha's sons, those of the Śūdras and were called the Sukalins.

In giving the description of the Pitṛis, the āgamas state that they are three in number and that they must be seated either on the same wooden seat or on a bhadra-pīṭha ; the three pitṛis are the father, the grandfather and the great grandfather. These must be sculptured as old but good looking and strong people of yellow colour, draped in yellow garments and wearing each an yajñōpavīta. On their head must be the kēśa-bandha and they should be adorned with all ornaments: their body should be smeared with ashes (bhasma). They should have nice teeth and have with them a walking stick and an umbrella. The pitṛis should have only two arms of which the left one should be kept stretched out on the knee of the bent left leg; the right hand should be held in the sūchi-hasta pose. The Vishṇudharmōttara states that the pitṛis should be seated upon kuśāsana (mat made of kuśa or on spread out kuśa grass) and that they should carry the pinḍapātra or the vessel to receive the rice-balls offered to them by their living descendants.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

(ix) RISHIS.

The word rishi, according to the Nirukta, means the rays of the sun and these are said to be seven in number. By an extension of meaning the term came to be applied to the rishis, the seers; just as the sun's rays spread everywhere and disclose the existence of all things, the seers or the rishis are able to perceive everything. Again, the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa considers the rishis as breaths and derives the word rishi thus: "In as much as before all this Universe, they, desiring this Universe, were worn out (arishan) with toil and austerity therefore they are rishis." Later on, the rishis were regarded as those who had reached the other end (pāragas) of jñāna and samsāra. The origin of the rishis according to the Nirukta is as follows:—Brahmā took some dirt from his body and sacrificed it to the fire. From the flames there emanated the ṛishi Bhṛigu (=fried in the fire). After the fire subsided, another ṛishi arose from the live charcoal (aṅgāra) and was therefore called Āngiras. A third ṛishi was predicted to be born after the two former from the same fire and was called Atri, the name Atri is also capable of meaning not-three and hence that the number of ṛishis was not going to stop with three and that some more were to be born from the kuṇḍa (fire-pit). When the agni was removed and the kuṇḍa dug out a ṛishi came into existence from the place where the kuṇḍa stood. He was known as Vaikhānasa. The Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa gives a slightly different account of the birth of the ṛishis. Marīchi was born first, at the time of the yāga was born Kratu. A third came into existence saying aḥam tṛtīya, I am the third, and was hence known as Atri. Then again a fourth with thick hair was born and was called Pulastya, a fifth with flowing hair and called Pulaha was next born. From the heap of coins and other dakṣiṇas (presents) placed in the yāga-kālā (sacrificial ground) was born another ṛishi and he was called Vasishṭha. All these were the mind-begotten sons of Brahmā and it is from these all other beings including the Pitṛis were generated.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

The ṛishis are grouped into seven classes. Vyāsa and others are called the Mahārishis; Bhēla and others, the Paramarishis, Kaṇva and others, the Dēvarishis; Vasishṭha and others, the Brahmarishis; Śūsruta and others, the Śrutarishis; Rūtaparna and others, the Rājarishis and Jaimini and others, the Kāṇḍarishis.

The names of the seven ṛishis differ from manvantara to manvantara

Jñāna or opinion is of two kinds, vidyā (true) and avidyā (false); the former of these arises from perception, inference and recollection and the infallible intuition peculiar to the ṛishis. The ṛishis possessed an intuition which was peculiarly their own and was shared slightly by the ordinary mortals. We learn that the ṛishis who lived of old and who conversed about sacred truths with the gods directly, led a conjugal life, whenever they wanted anything they approached straight the gods with metrical composition in praise of these gods; thus supernatural powers came to be attributed to these sages. The ṛishis seem also to be divided into the ancient and the modern, the former being Bhṛigu, Āṅgiras and others. It is worth noting that the ṛishis were called also kavis (poets) mēdhārvins (wise men), vipra (learned men) vipaschut, vēdhas, (words meaning also the learned men), muni (the thoughtful), etc.

The āgamas give the names of the seven ṛishis differently ; thus, the Aṁśumadbhēdāgama has Manu, Agastya, Vasishṭha, Gautama, Āṅgiras, Viśvāmitra and Bhāradvāja ; whereas the Suprabhēdāgama enumerates them as Bhṛigu, Vasishṭha, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu, Kaśyapa, Kauśika and Āṅgiras, and the Pūrvakāraṇāgama, Agastya, Pulastya, Viśvāmitra, Parāśara, Jamadagni, Vālmīki and Sanatkumāra. We have perhaps to understand that each of these authorities gives the names as they obtained in different Manvantaras.

The images of the ṛishis should be sculptured as either seated or standing on a padma-pīṭha ; they must be shown as peaceful old people with flowing beards reaching up to the chest, with jaṭāmakūṭas on their heads, yajñōpavītas, and with their foreheads marked with three streaks of vibhūti (bhasma or ashes). They may have in their hands a walking stick and an umbrella or they may keep the right hands in the jñāna-mudrā pose and rest the left arms on the knee of the left leg which must be bent and resting upon the seat. They should be clothed in garments made of barks of trees, which should be held in position by kaṭi-sūtrās ; their upper wear should be white clothes.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

(x) GANDHARVAS

Another class of semi-divine beings are the Gandharvas. In the Atharvaṇa Vēda they are said to be a class of gods, hairy, like monkeys or dogs ; they assume at will handsome appearances to seduce the females of this earth. Therefore they are invoked so that they may not indulge in this sort of wrong act but live with their own wives. The Gandharvas are believed to be deities who know the secrets of the divine truths and reveal them to the world. As we have already seen they are included in the class of Pañchajanas and Śāyana links them with Apsarasas according to him they are the males of a class of divine beings whose females were the Apsarasas. In the Atharvaṇa Vēda the Gandharvas are said to be 6333 in number. Of the eight different systems of marriage, according to the classification of the Āryas, one is the Gandharva system. This corresponds practically to the European and other similar systems, namely, a man and a woman falling in love with each other and entering into the life of man and wife until by mutual consent they separate or till the lifetime of one of the contracting parties, in other words the alliance is not a religious sacrament but a sort of contract. Hence the repudiation by Rāvaṇa of the protests of Rambhā whom he seduced and who was not willing to consort with him. The description of the images of Gandharvas is not met with in the āgamas and is, therefore, not possible to be given authoritatively.

DEMI GODS.

(xi) THE MARUT-GANAS.

In the Vēdic period the Maruts are said variously to be the children of the earth under the name of Prīṣṇi and Rudra and as children of the ocean. they are said to behave like sons to Indra. Rudra and Prīṣṇi are said to have begotten these in their assumed forms of a bull and a cow. Generally they were very friendly to Indra and with their help strengthened him against Vṛitrā-sura. Only in a very few instances they are described as having abandoned Indra and left him to kill Vṛitrā single-handed. The Maruts are the gods of the tempest and as such are sometimes included in the thirty-three gods and sometimes counted as outside this number, in some places they are said to be thrice sixty and in others as only twenty-seven in number. They were the favourite deities of some ṛishis who have sung high praises about them. In these they are extolled as having spears resting upon their shoulders wearing anklets, golden ornaments and helmets, seated upon resplendent cars drawn by spotted deer and carrying light in their hands, they are ever engaged in gathering rain-clouds and compelling them to discharge their contents. Divested of the poetic element and viewed in the ordinary sense, the Maruts are gusts of wind personified ; they are as fleet as deer and are really ever busy in gathering rain-clouds and helping Indra the god of the atmosphere.

HINDU ICONOGRAPHY.

The Aṁsumadbhēdāgama contains a description of the images of these Maruts. They should all be of handsome looks, dark in complexion and possessing two arms and standing upon padmapīṭhas. They should be draped in white silk garments, adorned with all ornaments and flowers and should have luxuriantly growing hair on their heads.

APPENDIX A.

The detailed measurements of the distances of the various limbs from the madhyasūtra, of the dancing Śiva-Natarāja are given in the Kāmikāgama and the Kāraṇāgama. The texts pertaining to this portion are not free from errors, therefore it is apprehended that some of the measurements may perhaps be incorrect. However, they are given below in the accompanying table.

This rule is according to the Kāraṇāgama. The Kāmikāgama says: The

From the fact that the madhyasūtra is required to touch the middle, practically, of the head, the

APPENDIX A.

śrōṇi, the right thigh and the centre of the ankle, we see that the line drawn from the centre of gravity of the heavy figures of Śiva-Natarāja is made to fall exactly in the centre of the base, which is generally a broad padmapīṭha, mounted upon a bhadrapiṭha. The perfect stability of the image is thus secured. The projecting limbs such as the two out-stretched arms, the uplifted leg and the back of the body are so symmetrically arranged with reference to this line as to counterpoise each other and not interfere in any way with the stability. Now, if the image were to stand upon only one leg without any other support, there would be the danger of the superincumbent weight acting detrimentally to the strength of the statue; the frail leg may break at the ankle, if the image sustains any accident. To avert such a possibility, the presence of the prabhā-maṇḍala is insisted upon; the out-stretched arms, the large number of jaṭās issuing from the head, a long, flowing strip of cloth which is tied round the middle of the body and the crown of the head are made to touch the prabhāmaṇḍala and are attached to it, thus affording perfect protection from the danger of breaking at the ankle. It might also be noticed that, as a general rule, (a more or less perfect one), the two out-stretched hands and the foot of the standing leg are made to lie on the three apices of an inverted equilateral triangle and are practically also on the same plane as that of the prabhāmandala. The height of mathematical calculation as regards distances and masses in the making of perfectly stable and strong images is, it might be stated, attained in the casting of the often bulky and large images of Śiva-Naṭarāja.
